PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 96th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Monday, February 19, 1979

The House met at 12 o'clock noon and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. GIAIMO).

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. GIAIMO) laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

Washington, D.C., February 15, 1979.

I hereby designate the Honorable ROBERT GIAIMO to act as Speaker pro tempore on Monday, February 19, 1979.

THOMAS P. O'NEILL, Jr.,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Prayer will be offered by the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. BONER).

Mr. BONER of Tennessee offered the following prayer:

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S PRAYER FOR OUR COUNTRY

"Almighty God: We make our earnest prayer that Thou wilt keep the United States in Thy holy protection; That Thou wilt incline the hearts of the citizens to cultivate a spirit of subordination and obedience to government; to entertain a brotherly affection and love for one another and for their fellow citizens in the United States at large. And finally that Thou wilt most graciously be pleased to dispose us all to do justice, to love mercy, to demean ourselves with charity, humility, and pacific temper of mind which were the characteristics of the Divine Author of our blessed religion, and without an humble imitation of whose example in these things we can never hope to be a happy nation. Grant our supplication, we beseech Thee, through Jesus Christ our Lord." Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1 of rule I, the Journal stands approved.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S FAREWELL ADDRESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of Tuesday, February 13, 1979, and without objection, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. BONER) to read Washington's Farewell Address.

Mr. BONER of Tennessee. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

It is an honor for me to give this address, realizing the circumstances under which I have been called upon by my fellow Members of this body to do so.

Mr. BONER of Tennessee read the Farewell Address as follows:

To the People of the United States.

FRIENDS AND FELLOW CITIZENS: The period for a new election of a citizen to administer the executive government of the United States being not far distant, and the time actually arrived when your thoughts must be employed in designating the person who is to be clothed with that important trust, it appears to me proper, especially as it may conduce to a more distinct expression of the public voice, that I should now apprise you of the resolution I have formed, to decline being considered among the number of those, out of whom a choice is to be made.

I beg you, at the same time, to do me the justice to be assured, that this resolution has not been taken, without a strict regard to all the considerations appertaining to the relation which binds a dutiful citizen to his country; and that, in withdrawing the tender of service which silence in my situation might imply, I am influenced by no diminution of zeal for your future interest; no deficiency of grateful respect for your past kindness; but am supported by a full conviction that the step is compatible with both.

The acceptance of, and continuance hitherto in the office to which your suffrages have twice called me, have been a uniform sacrifice of inclination to the opinion of duty, and to a deference for what appeared to be your desire. I constantly hoped that it would have been much earlier in my power, consistently with motives which I was not at liberty to disregard, to return to that retirement from which I had been reluctantly drawn. The strength of my inclination to do this, previous to the last election, had even led to the preparation of an address to declare it to you; but mature reflection on the then perplexed and critical posture of our affairs with foreign nations, and the unanimous advice of persons entitled to my confidence, impelled me to abandon the idea.

I rejoice that the state of your concerns external as well as internal, no longer renders the pursuit of inclination incompatible with the sentiment of duty or propriety; and am persuaded, whatever partiality may be retained for my services, that in the present circumstances of our country, you will not disapprove my determination to retire.

The impressions with which I first undertook the arduous trust, were explained on the proper occasion. In the discharge of this trust, I will only say that I have, with good intentions, contributed towards the organization and administration of the government, the best exertions of which a very fallible judgment was capable. Not unconscious in the outset, of the inferiority of my qualifications, experience, in my own eyes, perhaps still more in the eyes of others, has strengthened the motives to diffidence of myself; and, every day, the increasing weight of years admonishes me more and more, that the shade of retirement is as necessary to me as it will be welcome. Satisfied that if any circumstances have given peculiar value to my services they were temporary, I have the consolation to believe that, while choice and prudence invite me to quit the political scene, patriotism does not forbid it.

In looking forward to the moment which is to terminate the career of my political life, my feelings do not permit me to suspend the deep acknowledgment of that debt of gratitude which I owe to my beloved country, for the many honors it has conferred upon me; still more for the steadfast confidence with which it has supported me; and for the opportunities I have thence enjoyed of manifesting my inviolable attachment, by services faithful and persevering, though in usefulness unequal to my zeal.

If benefits have resulted to our country from these services, let it always be remembered to your praise, and as an instructive example in our annals, that under circumstances in which the passions, agitated in every direction, were liable to mislead amidst appearances sometimes dubious, vicissitudes of fortune often discouraging—in situations in which not unfrequently, want of success has countenanced the spirit of criticism,—the constancy of your support was the essential prop of the efforts, and a guarantee of the plans, by which they were effected. Profoundly penetrated with this idea, I shall carry it with me to my grave, as a strong incitement to unceasing vows that heaven may continue to you the choicest tokens of its beneficence—that your union and brotherly affection may be perpetual—that the free constitution, which is the work of your hands, may be sacredly maintained—that its administration in every department may be stamped with wisdom and virtue—that, in fine, the happiness of the people of these states, under the auspices of liberty, may be made complete by so careful a preservation, and so prudent a use of this blessing, as will acquire to them the glory of recommending it to the applause, the affection and adoption of every nation which is yet a stranger to it.

Here, perhaps, I ought to stop. But a solicitude for your welfare, which cannot end but with my life, and the apprehension of danger, natural to that solicitude, urge me, on an occasion like the present, to offer to your solemn contemplation, and to recommend to your frequent review, some sentiments which are the result of much reflection, of no inconsiderable observation, and which appear to me all important to the permanency of your felicity as a people. These will be offered to you with the more freedom, as you can only see in them the disinterested warnings of a parting friend, who can possibly have no personal motive to bias his counsel. Nor can I forget, as an encouragement to it, your indulgent reception of my sentiments on a former and not dissimilar occasion.

Interwoven as is the love of liberty with every ligament of your hearts, no recommendation of mine is necessary to fortify or confirm the attachment.

The unity of government which constitutes you one people, is also now dear to you. It is justly so; for it is a main pillar in the edifice of your real independence; the support of your tranquillity at home; your peace abroad; of your safety; of your prosperity; of that very liberty which you so highly prize. But, as it is easy to foresee that, from different causes and from different quarters much pains will be taken, many artifices employed, to weaken in your minds the conviction of this truth; as this is the point in your political fortress against which the batteries of internal and external enemies will be most constantly and actively (though often covertly and insidiously) directed; it is of infinite moment, that you should properly estimate the immense value of your national union to your collective and individual happiness; that you should cherish, a cordial, habitual, and immovable attachment to it; accustoming yourselves to think and speak of it as of the palladium of your political safety and prosperity; watching for its preservation with jealous anxiety; discountenancing whatever may suggest even a suspicion that it can, in any event, be abandoned; and indignantly frowning upon the first dawning of every attempt to alienate any portion of our country from the rest, or to enfeeble the sacred ties which now link together the various parts.

For this you have every inducement of sympathy and interest. Citizens by birth, or choice, of a common country, that country has a right to concentrate your affections. The name of American, which belongs to you in your national capacity, must always exalt the just pride of patriotism, more than any appellation derived from local discriminations. With slight shades of difference, you have the same religion, manners, habits, and political principles. You have, in a common cause, fought and triumphed together; the independence and liberty you possess are the work of joint counsels, and joint efforts, of common dangers, sufferings and successes.

But these considerations, however powerfully they address themselves to your sensibility, are greatly outweighed by those which apply more immediately to your interest.—Here, every portion of our country finds the most commanding motives for carefully guarding and preserving the union of the whole.

The north, in an unrestrained intercourse with the south, protected by the equal laws of a common government, finds in the productions of the latter, great additional resources of maritime and commercial enterprise, and precious materials of manufacturing industry.—The south, in the same intercourse, benefiting by the same agency of the north, sees its agriculture grow and its commerce expand. Turning partly into its own channels the seamen of the north, it finds its particular navigation invigorated; and while it contributes, in different ways, to nourish and increase the general mass of the national navigation, it looks forward to the protection of a maritime strength, to which itself is unequally adapted. The east, in a like intercourse with the west, already finds, and in the progressive improvement of interior communications by land and water, will more and more find a valuable vent for the commodities which it brings from abroad, or manufactures at home. The west derives from the east supplies requisite to its growth and comfort—and what is perhaps of still greater consequence, it must of necessity owe the secure enjoyment of indispensable outlets for its own productions, to the weight, influence, and the future maritime strength of the Atlantic side of the Union, directed by an indissoluble community of interest as one nation. Any other tenure by which the west can hold this essential advantage, whether derived from its own separate strength; or from an apostate and unnatural connection with any foreign power, must be intrinsically precarious.

While then every part of our country thus feels an immediate and particular interest in union, all the parts combined cannot fail to find in the united mass of means and efforts, greater strength, greater resource proportionably greater security from external danger, a less frequent interruption of their peace by foreign nations; and, what is of inestimable value, they must derive from union, an exemption from those broils and wars between themselves, which so frequently afflict neighboring countries not tied together by the same government; which their own rivalry alone would be sufficient to produce, but which opposite foreign alliances, attachments, and intrigues, would stimulate and embitter.—Hence likewise, they will avoid the necessity of those overgrown military establishments, which under any form of government are inauspicious to liberty, and which are to be regarded as particularly hostile to republican liberty. In this sense it is, that your union ought to be considered as a main prop of your liberty, and that the love of the one ought to endeavor to you the preservation of the other.

These considerations speak a persuasive language to every reflecting and virtuous mind, and exhibit the continuance of the union as a primary object of patriotic desire. Is there a doubt whether a common government can embrace so large a sphere? let experience solve it. To listen to mere speculation in such a case were criminal. We are authorized to hope that a proper organization of the whole, with the auxiliary agency of governments for the respective subdivisions, will afford a happy issue to the experiment. It is well worth a fair and full experiment. With such powerful and obvious motives to union, affecting all parts of our country, while experience shall not have demonstrated its impracticability, there will always be reason to distrust the patriotism of those who, in any quarter, may endeavor to weaken its hands.

In contemplating the causes which may disturb our Union, it occurs as matter of serious concern, that any ground should have been furnished for characterizing parties by geographical discriminations,—northern and southern—Atlantic and western; whence designing men may endeavor to excite a belief that there is a real difference of local interests and views. One of the expedients of party to acquire influence within particular districts, is to misrepresent the opinions and aims of other districts. You cannot shield yourselves too much against the jealousies and heart burnings which spring from these misrepresentations: they tend to render alien to each other those who ought to be bound together by fraternal affection. The inhabitants of our western country have lately had a useful lesson on this head: they have seen, in the negotiation by the executive, and in the unanimous ratification by the senate of the treaty with Spain, and in the universal satisfaction at the event throughout the United States, a decisive proof how unfounded were the suspicions propagated among them of a policy in the general government and in the Atlantic states, unfriendly to their interests in regard to the Mississippi. They have been witnesses to the formation of two treaties, that with Great Britain and that with Spain, which secure to them everything they could desire, in respect to our foreign relations, towards confirming their prosperity. Will it not be their wisdom to rely for the preservation of these advantages on the union by which they were procured? will they not henceforth be deaf to those advisers, if such they are, who would sever them from their brethren and connect them with aliens?

To the efficacy and permanency of your Union, a government for the whole is indispensable. No alliances, however strict, between the parts can be an adequate substitute; they must inevitably experience the infractions and interruptions which all alliances, in all times, have experienced. Sensible of this momentous truth, you have improved upon your first essay, by the adoption of a constitution of government, better calculated than your former, for an intimate union, and for the efficacious management of your common concerns. This government, the offspring of our own choice, uninfluenced and unawed, adopted upon full investigation and mature deliberation, completely free in its principles, in the distribution of its powers, uniting security with energy, and containing within itself a provision for its own amendment, has a just claim to your confidence and your support. Respect for its authority, compliance with its laws, acquiescence in its measures, are duties enjoined by the fundamental maxims of true liberty. The basis of our political systems is the right of the people to make and to alter their constitutions of government.—But the constitution which at any time exists, until changed by an explicit and authentic act of the whole people, is sacredly obligatory upon all. The very idea of the power, and the right of the people to establish government, presupposes the duty of every individual to obey the established government.

All obstructions to the execution of the laws, all combinations and associations under whatever plausible character, with the real design to direct, control, counteract, or awe the regular deliberations and action of the constituted authorities, are destructive of this fundamental principle, and of fatal tendency.—They serve to organize faction, to give it an artificial and extraordinary force, to put in the place of the delegated will of the nation the will of party, often a small but artful and enterprising minority of the community; and, according to the alternate triumphs of different parties, to make the public administration the mirror of the ill concerted and incongruous projects of faction, rather than the organ of consistent and wholesome plans digested by common councils, and modified by mutual interests.

However combinations or associations of the above description may now and then answer popular ends, they are likely, in the course of time and things, to become potent engines, by which cunning, ambitious, and unprincipled men, will be enabled to subvert the power of the people, and to usurp for themselves the reins of government; destroying afterwards the very engines which have lifted them to unjust dominion.

Towards the preservation of your government and the permanency of your present happy state, it is requisite, not only that you steadily discountenance irregular opposition to its acknowledged authority, but also that you resist with care the spirit of innovation upon its principles, however specious the pretext. One method of assault may be to effect, in the forms of the constitution, alterations which will impair the energy of the system; and thus to undermine what cannot be directly overthrown. In all the changes to which you may be invited, remember that time and habit are at least as necessary to fix the true character of governments, as of other human institutions:—that experience is the surest standard by which to test the real tendency of the existing constitution of a country:—that facility in changes, upon the credit of mere hypothesis and opinion, exposes to perpetual change from the endless variety of hypothesis and opinion: and remember, especially, that for the efficient management of your common interests in a country so extensive as ours, a government of as much vigor as is consistent with the perfect security of liberty is indispensable. Liberty itself will find in such a government, with powers properly distributed and adjusted, its surest guardian. It is, indeed, little else than a name, where the government is too feeble to withstand the enterprises of faction, to confine each member of the society within the limits prescribed by the laws, and to maintain all in the secure and tranquil enjoyment of the rights of person and property.

I have already intimated to you the danger of parties in the state, with particular references to the founding them on geographical discrimination. Let me now take a more comprehensive view, and warn you in the most solemn manner against the baneful effects of the spirit of party generally.

This spirit, unfortunately, is inseparable from our nature, having its root in the strongest passions of the human mind.—It exists under different shapes in all governments, more or less stifled, controlled, or repressed; but in those of the popular form it is seen in its greatest rankness, and is truly their worst enemy.

The alternate domination of one faction over another, sharpened by the spirit of revenge natural to party dissension, which in different ages and countries has perpetrated the most horrid enormities, is itself a frightful despotism.—But this leads at length to a more formal and permanent despotism. The disorders and miseries which result, gradually incline the minds of men to seek security and repose in the absolute power of an individual; and sooner or later, the chief of some prevailing faction, more able or more fortunate than his competitors, turns this disposition to the purpose of his own elevation on the ruins of public liberty.

Without looking forward to an extremity of this kind, (which nevertheless ought not to be entirely out of sight) the common and continual mischiefs of the spirit of party are sufficient to make it the interest and duty of a wise people to discourage and restrain it.

It serves always to distract the public councils, and enfeeble the public administration. It agitates the community with ill founded jealousies and false alarms; kindles the animosity of one part against another; foment occasional riot and insurrection. It opens the door to foreign influence and corruption, which finds a facilitated access to the government itself through the channels of party passions. Thus the policy and the will of one country are subjected to the policy and will of another.

There is an opinion that parties in free countries are useful checks upon the administration of the government, and serve to keep alive the spirit of liberty. This within certain limits is probably true; and in governments of a monarchical cast, patriotism may look with indulgence, if not with favor, upon the spirit of party. But in those of the popular character, in governments purely elective, it is a spirit not to be encouraged. From their natural tendency, it is certain there will always be enough of that spirit for every salutary purpose. And there being constant danger of excess, the effort ought to be, by force of public opinion, to mitigate and assuage it. A fire not to be quenched, it demands a uniform vigilance to prevent it bursting into a flame, lest instead of warming, it should consume.

It is important likewise, that the habits of thinking in a free country should inspire caution in those intrusted with its administration, to confine themselves within their respective constitutional spheres, avoiding in the exercise of the powers of one department, to encroach upon another. The spirit of encroachment tends to consolidate the powers of all the departments in one, and thus to create, whatever the form of government, a real despotism. A just estimate of that love of power and proneness to abuse it which predominate in the human heart, is sufficient to satisfy us of the truth of this position. The necessity of reciprocal checks in the exercise of political power, by dividing and distributing it into different depositories, and constituting each the guardian of the public weal against invasions of the others, has been evinced by experiments ancient and modern: some of them in our country and under our own eyes.—To preserve them must be as necessary as to institute them. If, in the opinion of the people, the distribution or modification of the constitutional powers be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by an amendment in the way which the constitution designates.—But let there be no change by usurpation; for though this, in one instance, may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed. The precedent must always greatly overbalance in permanent evil, any partial or transient benefit which the use can at any time yield.

Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports. In vain would that man claim the tribute of patriotism, who should labor to subvert these great pillars of human happiness, these firmest props of the duties of men and citizens. The mere politician, equally with the pious man, ought to respect and to cherish them. A volume could not trace all their connections with private and public felicity. Let it simply be asked, where is the security for property, for reputation, for life, if the sense of religious obligation desert the oaths which are the instruments of investigation in courts of justice? and let us with caution indulge the supposition that morality can be maintained without religion. Whatever may be conceded to the influence of refined education on minds of peculiar structure, reason and experience both forbid us to expect, that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

It is substantially true, that virtue or morality is a necessary spring of popular government. The rule, indeed, extends with more or less force to every species of free government. Who that is a sincere friend to it can look with indifference upon attempts to shake the foundation of the fabric?

Promote, then, as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge. In proportion as the structure of a government gives force to public opinion, it should be enlightened.

As a very important source of strength and security, cherish public credit. One method of preserving it is to use it as sparingly as possible, avoiding occasions of expense by cultivating peace, but remembering, also, that timely disbursements, to prepare for danger, frequently prevent much greater disbursements to repel it; avoiding likewise the accumulation of debt, not only by shunning occasions of expense, but by vigorous exertions, in time of peace, to discharge the debts which unavoidable wars may have occasioned, not ungenerously throwing upon posterity the burden which we ourselves ought to bear. The execution of these maxims belongs to your representatives, but it is necessary that public opinion should co-operate. To facilitate to them the performance of their duty, it is essential that you should practically bear in mind, that towards the payment of debts there must be revenue; that to have revenue there must be taxes; that no taxes can be devised which are not more or less inconvenient and unpleasant; that the intrinsic embarrassment inseparable from the selection of the proper object (which is always a choice of difficulties) ought to be a decisive motive for a candid construction of the conduct of the government in making it, and for a spirit of acquiescence in the measures for obtaining revenue, which the public exigencies may at any time dictate.

Observe good faith and justice towards all nations; cultivate peace and harmony with all. Religion and morality enjoin this conduct, and can it be that good policy does not equally enjoin it? It will be worthy of a free, enlightened, and, at no distant period, a great nation, to give to mankind the magnanimous and too novel example of a people always guided by an exalted justice and benevolence. Who can doubt but, in the course of time and things, the fruits of such a plan would richly repay any temporary advantages which might be lost by a steady adherence to it; can it be that Providence has not connected the permanent felicity of a nation with its virtue? The experiment, at least, is recommended by every sentiment which ennobles human nature. Alas! is it rendered impossible by its vices?

In the execution of such a plan, nothing is more essential than that permanent, inveterate antipathies against particular nations and passionate attachment for others, should be excluded; and that, in place of them, just and amicable feelings towards all should be cultivated. The nation which indulges toward another an habitual hatred, or an habitual fondness, is in some degree a slave. It is a slave to its animosity or to its affection, either of which is sufficient to lead it astray from its duty and its interest. Antipathy in one nation against another, disposes each more readily to offer insult and injury, to lay hold of slight causes of umbrage, and to haughty and intractable when accidental or trifling occasions of dispute occur. Hence, frequent collisions, obstinate, envenomed, and bloody contests. The nation, prompted by ill will and resentment, sometimes impels to war the government, contrary to the best calculations of policy. The government sometimes participates in the national propensity, and adopts through passion what reason would reject; at other times, it makes the animosity of the nation subservient to projects of hostility, instigated by pride, ambition, and other sinister and pernicious motives. The peace often, sometimes perhaps the liberty of nations, has been the victim.

So likewise, a passionate attachment of one nation for another produces a variety of evils. Sympathy for the favorite nation, facilitating the illusion of an imaginary common interest, in cases where no real common interest exists, and infusing into one the enmities of the other, betrays the former into a participation in the quarrels and wars of the latter, without adequate inducements or justifications. It leads also to concessions, to the favorite nation, of privileges denied to others, which is apt doubly to injure the nation making the concessions, by unnecessarily parting with what ought to have been retained, and by exciting jealousy, ill will, and a disposition to retaliate in the parties from whom equal privileges are withheld; and it gives to ambitious, corrupted or deluded citizens who devote themselves to the favorite nation, facility to betray or sacrifice the interests of their own country, without odium, sometimes even with popularity; gilding with the appearances of a virtuous sense of obligation, a commendable deference for public opinion, or a laudable zeal for public good, the base or foolish compliances of ambition, corruption, or infatuation.

As avenues to foreign influence in innumerable ways, such attachments are particularly alarming to the truly enlightened and independent patriot. How many opportunities do they afford to tamper with domestic factions, to practice the arts of seduction, to mislead public opinion, to influence or awe the public councils!—Such an attachment of a small or weak, towards a great and powerful nation, dooms the former to be the satellite of the latter.

Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence, (I conjure you to believe me fellow citizens,) the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake; since history and experience prove, that foreign influence is one of the most baneful foes of republican government. But that jealousy, to be useful, must be impartial, else it becomes the instrument of the very influence to be avoided, instead of a defense against it. Excessive partiality for one foreign nation and excessive dislike for another, cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to veil and even second the arts of influence on the other. Real patriots, who may resist the intrigues of the favorite, are liable to become suspected and odious; while its tools and dupes usurp the applause and confidence of the people, to surrender their interests.

The great rule of conduct for us, in regard to foreign nations, is, in extending our commercial relations, to have with them as little political connection as possible. So far as we have already formed engagements, let them be fulfilled with perfect good faith:—Here let us stop.

Europe has a set of primary interests, which to us have none, or a very remote relation. Hence, she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves, by artificial ties, in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics, or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities.

Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to pursue a different course. If we remain one people, under an efficient government, the period is not far off when we may defy material injury from external annoyance; when we may take such an attitude as will cause the neutrality we may at any time resolve upon, to be scrupulously respected; when belligerent nations, under the impossibility of making acquisitions upon us, will not lightly hazard the giving us provocation, when we may choose peace or war, as our interest, guided by justice, shall counsel.

Why forego the advantages of so peculiar a situation? Why quit our own to stand upon foreign ground? Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambition, rivalship, interest, humor, or caprice?

It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliance with any portion of the foreign world; so far, I mean, as we are now at liberty to do it; for let me not be understood as capable of patronizing infidelity to existing engagements. I hold the maxim no less applicable to public than private affairs, that honesty is always the best policy. I repeat it, therefore, let those engagements be observed in their genuine sense. But in my opinion, it is unnecessary, and would be unwise to extend them.

Taking care always to keep ourselves by suitable establishments, on a respectable defensive posture, we may safely trust to temporary alliances for extraordinary emergencies.

Harmony, and a liberal intercourse with all nations, are recommended by policy, humanity, and interest. But even our commercial policy should hold an equal and impartial hand; neither seeking nor granting exclusive favors or preferences; consulting the natural course of things; diffusing and diversifying by gentle means the streams of commerce; but forcing nothing; establishing with powers so disposed, in order to give trade a stable course, to define the rights of our merchants, and to enable the government to support them, conventional rules of intercourse, the best that present circumstances and mutual opinion will permit, but temporary, and liable to be from time to time abandoned or varied as experience and circumstances shall dictate; constantly keeping in view, that it is folly in one nation to look for disinterested favors from another; that it must pay with a portion of its independence for whatever it may accept under that character; that by such acceptance, it may place itself in the condition of having given equivalents for nominal favors, and yet of being reproached with ingratitude for not giving more. There can be no greater error than to expect, or calculate upon real favors from nation to nation. It is an illusion which experience must cure, which a just pride ought to discard.

In offering to you, my countrymen, these counsels of an old and affectionate friend, I dare not hope they will make the strong and lasting impression I could wish; that they will control the usual current of the passions, or prevent our nation from running the course which has hitherto marked the destiny of nations, but if I may even flatter myself that they may be productive of some partial benefit, some occasional good; that they may now and then recur to moderate the fury of party spirit, to warn against the mischiefs of foreign intrigue, to guard against the impostures of pretended patriotism: this hope will be a full recompense for the solicitude for your welfare by which they have been dictated.

How far, in the discharge of my official duties, I have been guided by the principles which have been delineated, the public records and other evidences of my conduct must witness to you and to the world. To myself, the assurance of my own conscience is, that I have, at least, believed myself to be guided by them.

In relation to the still subsisting war in Europe, my proclamation of the 22d of April, 1793, is the index to my plan. Sanctioned by your approving voice, and by that of your representatives in both houses of congress, the spirit of that measure has continually governed me, uninfluenced by any attempts to deter or divert me from it.

After deliberate examination, with the aid of the best lights I could obtain, I was well satisfied that our country, under all the circumstances of the case, had a right to take, and was bound, in duty and interest, to take a neutral position. Having taken it, I determined, as far as should depend upon me, to maintain it with moderation, perseverance and firmness.

The considerations which respect the right to hold this conduct, it is not necessary on this occasion to detail. I will only observe that, according to my understanding of the matter, that right, so far from being denied by any of the belligerent powers, has been virtually admitted by all.

The duty of holding a neutral conduct may be inferred, without any thing more, from the obligation which justice and humanity impose on every nation, in cases in which it is free to act, to maintain inviolate the relations of peace and amity towards other nations.

The inducements of interest for observing that conduct will best be referred to your own reflections and experience. With me, a predominant motive has been to endeavor to gain time to our country to settle and mature its yet recent institutions, and to progress, without interruption, to that degree of strength, and consistency which is necessary to give it, humanly speaking, the command of its own fortunes.

Though in reviewing the incidents of my administration I am unconscious of intentional error, I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. Whatever they may be, I fervently beseech the Almighty to avert or mitigate the evils to which they may tend. I shall also carry with me the hope that my country will never cease to view them with indulgence; and that, after forty-five years of my life dedicated to its service, with an upright zeal, the faults of incompetent abilities will be consigned to oblivion, as myself must soon be to the mansions of rest.

Relying on its kindness in this as in other things, and actuated by that fervent love towards it, which is so natural to a man who views in it the native soil of himself and his progenitors for several generations; I anticipate with pleasing expectation that retreat in which I promise myself to realize, without alloy, the sweet enjoyment of partaking, in the midst of my fellow citizens, the benign influence of good laws under a free government—the ever favorite object of my heart, and the happy reward, as I trust, of our mutual cares, labors and dangers.

GEO. WASHINGTON.

UNITED STATES,
17th September, 1796.

Mr. BONER of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, I request unanimous consent to revise and extend my remarks to include the entire composition of Washington's Farewell Address.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered, and the Chair would like to thank the gentleman from Tennessee for his presentation of the farewell speech of President George Washington.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Idaho (Mr. HANSEN) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate very much the opportunity to testify before you and this subcommittee regarding the planned assault on the Nation's private schools by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS).

Mr. Speaker, I am the congressional "whistle blower" who exposed the presumptuous and secretive move by the IRS to broaden its control over, as well as "discriminate" against, private schools which has become a national outrage.

Hidden among the "Notices" section of the August 22, 1978, Federal Register—sandwiched between routine announcements instead of appearing in the section on Proposed Rules and Regulations—was an IRS proposal that all private schools formed or expanded at or after the implementation of desegregation plans in the respective communities, will be presumed guilty of systematic racial discrimination and their tax-exempt status will be revoked retroactively.

The IRS long ago seems to have lost its sense of mission as a tax-collection agency and with all the grace of the hobbled gestapo has embarked on a course of implementing and enforcing social reform with the view that Americans are basically dishonest, uncharitable, bigoted, criminal-minded and even violent to deal with.

These may seem like strong words, Mr. Speaker, but the shocking story on IRS behavior that I will reveal to you today will prove my point.

For years we have become progressively inured to the routine contempt the IRS has chronically demonstrated for accepted civilized standards of fairness, something which has its roots in the regrettable presumption that in tax matters the citizen is guilty until proven innocent, an innocence that has to be proven at the expense of the taxpayer, no matter how groundless or frivolous the charge.

To demonstrate that this is not taxpayer paranoia, I submit for the record a shocking paragraph from a recently acquired IRS memo dated November 19, 1976, which clearly states that taxpayers should be intimidated with expensive unwarranted lawsuits. The communication addressed to the Regional Counsel, Salt Lake City office, from Group Manager, 1004, Boise District Office, declares:

It is stated you do not wish to litigate a case you may lose. However, failure to attempt litigation will foster their program far more than a loss in court. At least by litigating, the Taxpayer is forced to produce the necessary substantiation. In addition, the Taxpayer is committed to spend time and money defending his position. Perhaps the inconvenience alone will inspire future compliance.

Now Mr. Speaker, with this attitude the IRS has been creeping into the social reform enforcement business for many years and began in 1975 requiring schools to state that they are nondiscriminatory in order to keep their tax-exempt status. The Washington Post of October 14, 1978, confirms this reality in reporting that Virginia's "Prince Edward School Tax-Exempt Status is Revoked by IRS."

The regulation proposed in August for IRS to become a big-time civil rights enforcer was a further extension of a malignant spread that has taken them from the confinement of simple tax collection to impact on many sensitive areas of the body politic.

In its usual sweeping manner the IRS proposed to make a blanket finding of racial discrimination and automatically harass all private schools, putting on its victims the onerous burden of proving their innocence. At the same time the IRS pointed out how it would be practically impossible to refute the charge unless there is an affirmative action program operating.

This serious constitutionally questionable IRS action was brazenly taken without congressional authorization in circumstances that dwarf all their previous efforts at trickery. To cover up their attempt to "hide" the Federal Register notice, the IRS had the astonishing gall to say that this is an insignificant regulation, a mere procedural change which does not merit public hearing.

Frankly, the position of the IRS is not only absurd and dishonest, but it is dangerous. This is not merely a procedural matter, but a substantive proposition that calls into question the tax liabilities, supposedly long past settled, of hundreds of thousands of citizens for many years past. IRS auditors will have a field day. It obviously has the gravest conceivable implications for the survival of private schools, and certainly gives the IRS wide scope for abuse and harassment.

Having watched the IRS swoop down on the hapless victims of the Teton Dam disaster of 1976 and scoop up capital gains taxes arbitrarily imposed on flood claims reimbursements, I am not surprised to see them again gleefully anticipating the financial squeeze they can put on those private schools identified as discriminatory and the taxpayers who have supported them.

And lest we believe the IRS has any conscience about forcing private schools or anyone else out of business by taking their last farthing, let me cite to you an alarming memo dated March 2, 1973, to the chief, Collection and Taxpayer Service, from a group supervisor in Boise entitled, "How Can We Prevent Delinquency?"

Marginal taxpayers in inefficient, non-profitable businesses are probably responsible for a larger percentage of delinquencies than any other segment of the tax paying public. The most apparent characteristic of these enterprises is the ability to start business with an absolute minimum in capital equipment, cash reserves and other assets, e.g. service stations, restaurants, and construction trades.

The Collection Division has been faced with a two-pronged problem for many years:

First. Prevent delinquencies by stern, prompt enforcement action which forces the taxpayer to discontinue business.

Second. Accomplish the above without undue pressure from the public and the elected officials.

In my opinion, this cannot be done and we must realize that complaints will be an integral part and result of such measures. We must not be oversensitive to these complaints and requests for leniency.

Law addition and other approvals that would help in other areas:

1. Require known prior delinquents to post a cash bond before commencing business (as does the State).

2. Require farmers to withhold income taxes.

3. In collaboration with the State, require license applicants to prove filing and paying HUT and liquor and beer stamps before a license is issued.

4. Provide more man hours for cold canvass operation.

5. A more religious and systemic use of Public Law 85-321.

What is involved in the proposed IRS regulation regarding private schools is not actually a matter of racial discrimination, nor is it really a tax matter. Since the regulation explicitly includes church-related schools, and since there is nothing in the regulation that could not later be applied to churches themselves, what is involved is a very deep first amendment question.

It is a patent evasion to label this regulation "procedural" and claim that it is of no significance and this remains true despite the recent softening of the IRS under public and congressional pressure to get out of the business of enforcing social reform where private schools are concerned.

The fact that the new proposal still retains the questionable percentage requirements subject to arbitrary interpretation by IRS leaves the "tiger in the tank" with broad latitude and virtually unlimited areas to prowl as regulations are adjusted and expanded in the future.

Mr. Speaker, I must warn you. The IRS is the last agency which should be entrusted with any responsibility for legal judgment regarding civil and religious rights.

If the two IRS memos quoted earlier have not sufficiently disturbed you, let me now inform you of an attempt by IRS officials in the highest positions to literally terrorize a small community in my congressional district by staging a massive armed door-to-door search and then cover up not only this particular incident but other equally shocking atrocities being committed against citizens of this Nation.

In November 1975 some 25 specially selected IRS personnel were directed to participate in a project calling for a confrontation and armed shakedown of 167 citizens in Fremont County, Idaho—citizens who, beyond belief, found themselves on an IRS "hit list" largely because of the size of their church donations, because of time devoted to church service, because of extended serious illness or death, and because of assorted other similar reasons.

A neurotic IRS, suffering apparent paranoia over the tax resisters movement in the Nation, decided the percentage of returns in the St. Anthony area was too low and initiated the "Fremont County Returns Compliance Program (RCP)" to educate the public about tax laws.

The word "educate" has very ominous meaning when civic and business leaders, clergymen, elderly female church organizers, young men just back from serving 2-year missions for their church with no income, and people in extended hospital confinement or on social security disability pensions are included on IRS lists of citizens considered dangerous to contact or who may advocate violence—citizens slated for contact by armed Federal agents who would be asking them to produce their tax returns.

The project, which was to last a week, was canceled only 4 days before it was scheduled to begin because certain less militant IRS employees balked and complained to their union which finally forced a decision in the Washington office of the IRS Assistant Commissioner for Inspections.

It has taken over 2 years to get to the bottom of this story and in the process I find that the tactics used in dealing with the citizens of Fremont County, Idaho, are not unusual in IRS operations across the Nation, and this can now be documented.

The Nixon enemy list is tame compared to the IRS violence lists and the identified abuses and coverups of the CIA and FBI in recent years also exist in the IRS, perhaps to an even greater degree.

Commissioner Jerome Kurtz and other officials have repeatedly provided false and misleading information apparently designed to obscure or justify the heavy-handed methods of the IRS, information which is readily refuted by IRS documents.

I was told the armed confrontation was planned to deal with a list of tax resisters provided by the FBI but can prove that such a list (which itself can be challenged) was not prepared until nearly 2 months after the Fremont project was canceled and that list had no residents of Fremont County included.

In other words, Mr. Kurtz justified the planning and approval of an armed search with a list that was not applicable to the area involved and did not even exist during the period of the operation. This is an intolerable abuse of facts.

Furthermore, I was told the Fremont project was to protect IRS personnel and that the hit list was to include only men over age 20. However, I find that the IRS included women on their list contrary to instructions and violated their own rules in creating a confrontation which could have caused violence rather than prevent it.

Although there is documentation to prove that the search was only canceled because of employee complaints, a letter from Mr. Kurtz would have us believe that the canvass was canceled because, of all things, it might provoke the very confrontations the mission was originally set up to create.

A long list of examples of such duplicity could be provided, and is evident in the attached narrative of the Fremont County project which I submit for the RECORD at the end of my remarks. However, if there is any question as to the acceptability of this type of operation among IRS officials, let it now be laid to rest.

Just 7 days after the project was scrubbed on November 14, 1975, the coordinator of this project was given a memorandum of appreciation by an IRS group manager who stated:

I was very impressed with the Plan of Action which you originated.

And on January 30, 1979 the Idaho district director announced the selection of this same IRS employee for a GS-12 position as disclosure officer.

In the meantime, the Idaho district director, who supervised the planning of the Fremont project, has now been promoted to national director of the Disclosure Division of IRS, where ironically he is responsible for administration of the Freedom of Information Act, the Privacy Act and the new disclosure laws.

Mr. Speaker, the Fremont project was planned, canceled and covered up at State, regional, and national levels so there is no way this activity can be discounted as an isolated incident. The blundering, bullish manner in which IRS handled civil and religious rights in the Fremont project can be rehearsed many times over in other situations in Idaho and across the Nation with substantial documentation.

I have cited many valid constitutional objections to the IRS having any role in the interpretation and enforcement of social reform programs.

These objections are bolstered with a practical concern for allowing an agency with such a poor track record to have broad license in sensitive decisions regarding matters of religious and civil rights.

IRS has demonstrated that it is neither mentally nor mechanically flexible enough to deal with religious and personal differences and this is true even down to the very decision we currently face. Even in backing off from the original August pronouncement IRS has, in reality, reserved the right to make selective judgment regarding private schools which gives them broad latitude for arbitrariness and harassment.

For instance, in singling out certain denominational academies as possible exceptions, IRS is opening a Pandora's box where other exceptions are demanded and where those rejected can be expected to pose costly time-consuming challenges to the Government.

It is absolutely absurd to continue to allow the IRS to run like a rampant bull in a shop stocked with the fragile porcelain of human rights. It is time to confine IRS to the tax-collection mission for which it was instituted.

I urge this Congress to take all necessary action to stop the implementation of the proposed IRS rules regarding private schools. I further strongly urge appropriate congressional committees to hold oversight hearings on the abuse of taxpayers by the IRS such as I have outlined today.

And finally, I urge Congress to consider legislation I have introduced, and any other of like nature, which will reform or restrict the mission of the Internal Revenue Service before it does significantly more damage.

Mr. Speaker, in closing I submit for the record House Joint Memorial No. 2 from the Idaho State Legislature transmitted to me on February 6, 1979, "which urges the U.S. Congress to prevent proposed Internal Revenue Service regulations from becoming effective that eliminate the tax exempt status of private schools that do not conform to certain rules and regulations regarding minority membership."

A JOINT MEMORIAL

We, Your Memorialists, the House of Representatives and Senate of the State of Idaho assembled in the First Regular Session of the Forty-fifth Idaho Legislature, do hereby respectfully represent that:

Whereas, the Internal Revenue Service, Department of the Treasury, has announced a proposed revenue procedure relating to private school tax exemptions; and

Whereas, the proposed revenue procedure will, in effect, establish quotas for minority participation in tax exempt private schools; and

Whereas, such quotas have been held discriminatory in a recent United States Supreme Court opinion; and

Whereas, the use of private schools should be encouraged in order to help take the burden from public schools.

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved by the members of the First Regular Session of the Forty-fifth Idaho Legislature, the House of Representatives and the Senate concurring therein, that we are deeply concerned with such a proposed procedure and strongly urge that the Congress take such immediate action as necessary to prevent such proposed procedure from becoming effective.

Be It Further Resolved that the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives be, and he is hereby authorized and directed to forward copies of this Memorial to the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives of Congress, and the honorable congressional delegation representing the State of Idaho in the Congress of the United States.

AN ARMED IRS SHAKEDOWN

I have recently discovered official Internal Revenue Service documents which show, in some detail, an attempt by the IRS to literally terrorize a small community in my congressional district by staging a massive armed door-to-door search. These same documents have also helped me prove that there has been and still is an extensive and ongoing attempt by IRS officials in the highest positions to coverup not only this particular incident but other equally shocking atrocities being committed against the citizens of this Nation.

What I am about to present is a real-life horror story, one chapter in a whole book of outrageous IRS violations of the basic rights of American citizens, which I will continue to expose.

On October 2, 1975 a meeting of IRS division chiefs and the Idaho district director was held in Boise, Idaho, apparently with the knowledge and approval of national headquarters, to discuss coordination of what was later termed a "planned armed, door-to-door search" in St. Anthony, Fremont County, Idaho.

Howard Martin, then district director of the IRS, authorized what was to be known as the Fremont County returns compliance program (RCP) on October 16, 1975. The purpose of the program was ostensibly "to determine the degree of voluntary compliance, to secure any delinquent returns and to educate the public about tax laws."

The IRS, under the direction of Revenue Officer Sherrill Ohman, began immediately to gather data on the citizens of St. Anthony and to cross reference driver's license receipts with existing IRS files. From this effort, the IRS developed a list of 167 taxpayers to be confronted.

The criteria for being placed on the list was simple enough—a male licensed driver from Fremont County between the ages of 21 and 65 with any irregularities in his tax history for any of the years 1972, 1973, and 1974 appeared to automatically qualify, even if there was obviously no illegality involved.

These tax irregularities or aberrations, which would likely be picked out on the microscreening of taxpayer returns used for the selecting process, seemed to include such things as, first, reporting unusually high church contributions; second, not filing because of physical or mental handicap; third, not filing because of no income such as students and missionaries; fourth, not appearing to file because of change of name or address; fifth, not filing because of death; sixth, being previously audited whether for good cause or because of clerical error or IRS error, or substantiable large deductions; seventh, filing an improper return; eighth, not filing a return; ninth, delinquency in tax payments, and so forth. Given this large number of determining factors, the final list grew to 167 names, a number approximately equal to one-fourth of the heads of households in the small city of St. Anthony, the Fremont county seat.

The people involved, though not necessarily, and probably not, illegal or improper in their tax filings, still were listed on forms entitled "Delinquent Return Information and Returns Compliance Records" and handled under a covering letter or memorandum which suggested ominously that these randomly selected people may be dangerous to contact.

Not only was the list wrongly suggestive of taxpayer status and temperament, but it was so sloppily and erroneously assembled as to present further complications to an already inflammable project. It will be noted on the list I hereby submit that women were included when only men were intended to be and the spelling of many of the names is so inaccurate as to make the list almost useless. I have supplied what I believe to be the proper spelling of names in parentheses where possible:

Brent Powell, Charles Wesley Rash, Ronald G. Remington, Clayton Reum, Brent Crofts Rhodehouse, Theril B. Ricks, James Jean Rumsey, T. J. Ryan, William Renton Siddoway, Robert Smith, Terry Lynn Hobles, Harry K. Horrell, Grant I. Howard, Mark Hale Howard, and Gean Jackson.

Jerri Lee Jenkins, Jack Douglas Kapor, Robert E. Kohlenger, Eugene LeCheminier (Le Cheminant) Lillis Burbank Michelsen, . . . ward Garvis (?), Gary Hobbs, Mont Carlos Howard, Glen Lyman Jackson, Gerald Vernon J. . . , and Richard F. Jergensen.

Russell Kay Johnson, . . . Dee Angell, Kenny Leo Beddes, Randall Bergeson, Jim Birch, Richard Reynolds Blake, Robert Lynn Carraway, Roy Graude (Grende), Bruce Kay Crapo, Clyde Raymond Garrett, Montie Jo Jackson, and Lillis Birch Johnson.

James Kim Kirkham, Ossie D. Mason, Dennis D. Maynard, Charles D. McMinn, Morris Gordon Nielsen, Douglas C. Peck, Jimmie Remington, Hal Andrew Rumsey, Lance Stoddard, Roger Willete, and William Edward Wocelka.

Dale Larson, Don Coy Larson, Thomas Steven Robison, Monte E. Rydallch, Lynn Wesley Schulties (Schuldies), Brian D. Schuldies, John R. Seely, Cecil E. Shitmore (Whitmore), Torger J. Skalet, Thomas R. Stilley, Charles Alonzo Stoddard, George Kino Sutterfield, Randall K. Abbegetn, Solomon E. Angell, Solomon E. Angell, Jr., and William Arndt.

Floyd R. Parker, Edward Horace Weaver, Don Winegar, Russell Arthur Severyn, Dale Lamar Swensen, Merrill J. Walker, Van Ranav Weaker (Weaver), Chari Lee Worrell Winters (Charles), Evan Arthur Blanchard, Richard Dee Burbank, William Craig Cashing, and Burke Clark.

Merle Parker, Afton Owens Toone, Joel T. Young, Wayne E. Welker, Dennis Allen, Randall Bergeson, Dennis Sinclair Birch, Lowell Edgar Birch, Rhea Mecham Blake, . . . J. Collette, Grant Arthur Hathaway, Alvin Gayle Hathory (Hathaway), Dan R. Hill, John Ho, Morris Lincoln Nielson, Alex D. Orgill, Lionel Ray Parker, Jerry Raymond Parkett, and Donald Andrew Peck.

My findings show that this list contains several local clergymen, L.D.S. (Mormon) missionaries (away from home for 2-year periods without an income), people incapacitated in hospitals, people on disability pensions, prominent businessmen and farmers and even a 61-year-old lady church organist.

However, to the best of my knowledge, none of the people listed, with the possible exception of one known to have been involved in a tavern scuffle, I have every reason to believe that most, if not all of them, were properly filing and paying their taxes.

The list was sent, on October 30, 1975, to inspector in charge, Don DeBoer, "to enable screening by the Inspection Division: Identification of those individual taxpayers which may be dangerous to contact." Mr. DeBoer was and is chief of inspection for the Ogden region and his immediate supervisors are the Assistant Commissioner and the Commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service.

On November 3, 1975, Howard Martin approved staffpower for this project of approximately 25 IRS agents, more than one-third of which were to be armed. The following IRS personnel, none stationed in the project area, were involved:

Don DeBoer, Bob Higgins, Gerd Hattwig, Sherrill Ohman, Monte Hobson, Diane Medina, Gene Bryan, Jim Quam, Hugh Pierce, Rick Owens, Ray Boone, Gary Hellekson, Keith Farrar, Stan Leake, Shirley Sterling, Shirley Sisson, Bob Hanmer, Kathy Corrigan, Jim Welty, Peggy Newcomb, John Eastham, Warren Packard, and Larry Kimbrell.

The Freemont County RCP program "plan of action," written in October 1975, reads like a military invasion strategy. It includes terms such as "protecting personnel," "report of threat or assault," "summons preparation," and calls for the installation of telephone lines to "first, headquarters; second, inspection; third, intelligence; fourth, St. Anthony Police; fifth, sheriff's office, and sixth, operations base. The technical procedure descriptions of the program included: First, extensive discussion of anticipated situations and how to react; second, briefing on intelligence; third, briefing on assaults or threats; fourth, briefing on protection.

Some local IRS agents, when informed of this strategy, questioned the advisability of this operation which was contrary to basic procedure and vigorously pointed out that this type of unusually aggressive action on the part of the IRS could result in serious misunderstandings and even intimidation of innocent citizens into hostile and perhaps violent confrontation with IRS personnel.

One IRS employee described the operation as a naked attempt to grab power:

They can bring in enough agents to have an army of their own. The important thing is . . . their policies are creating a situation here that is harming not only the citizens, but it is harming the IRS.

Because of pressure from concerned agents within the IRS, the project was cancelled only 4 days before its proposed inception. The memorandum, dated November 7, 1975, which canceled the program states:

To: All participating personnel, Fremont County RCP.

From: Acting Chief, CTS, Boise district.
Subject: Total cancellation of entire project.

The decision has been made to cancel all plans for this RCP program. Those individuals previously notified to attend an orientation meeting on November 11, 1975, and to be present in Idaho Falls during the week of November 17, 1975 should cancel their plans and resume normal activities. All reservations and transportation plans are also being cancelled as of this date.

RALPH HUTCHINSON.

This cancellation in no way indicated that the upper levels of the IRS objected to the project. As a matter of fact, the project coordinator received a group manager's "memorandum of appreciation" dated November 14, 1975 just 1 week after the project was terminated. Note the sentences stating, "I was very impressed with the plan of action which you originated" and "I sincerely appreciate your enthusiasm and dedication in this project." The memo follows:

SHERILL OHMAN,
Revenue Officer,
MONTE HOBSON,
Group Manager.

MEMORANDUM OF APPRECIATION

I would like to compliment you on your performance in coordinating the proposed Returns Compliance Program in Southeastern Idaho. I was very impressed with the Plan of Action which you originated.

You have demonstrated that you are fully capable of organizing and implementing a complex assignment. I have complete confidence in your ability to handle any project assigned to you, and I look forward to working with you on future projects.

I sincerely appreciate your enthusiasm and dedication in this project.

MONTE HOBSON.

Furthermore, shortly after this incident, Howard Martin, the Idaho State Director of IRS who approved these projects, was promoted to National Director of the Disclosure Division of IRS—the agency responsible for administering the Freedom of Information Act, the Privacy Act, and the new disclosure laws.

The fact that a small town full of innocent people nearly suffered a full scale armed invasion is certainly in itself a terrifying story—but the tale does not end here.

A few months after the above abortive attempt to "educate" the citizens of St. Anthony, the waters from the faulty Teton Dam swept through this same area turning many of the small towns into so many piles of rubble and mud.

My office, along with other members of Idaho's congressional delegation and departments of the Federal Government, moved quickly to assist in rehabilitation efforts and to insure that the victims were properly reimbursed by the Federal Government for their losses. And just as quickly the IRS moved in and attempted to retrieve as much money as possible for the U.S. Treasury in the form of capital gains taxes.

Beginning during this period of the summer of 1976, I came to really see a mentality and driving force behind the IRS, that caused me grave concern. Not only was I appalled at the callous attempted application of capital gains taxes, but I began to see a similar pattern of overkill in other matters concerning taxpayers. Only through congressional pressure did IRS give some ground on an item-for-item application of capital gains procedure regarding replacement of household goods of flood victims, and it was during this hassle that I discovered that the IRS had recently composed a "violence list" on citizens in the Teton disaster area—names of a number of Idahoans considered prone to "advocate violence toward Western region (IRS) personnel."

The list consisting of 25 people and dated December 31, 1975, is as follows:

District Director, Boise.
Regional Inspector, Western Region.
Taxpayers Who May Advocate Violence Toward Western Region Personnel.

We are transmitting a list of individuals in your District who may advocate violence toward government officials including Revenue employees.

The list was compiled from a system of records dealing with criminal law enforcement was exempted from disclosure under 5 U.S.C. 522a(j) (2) by the Commissioner. You are not to make this list a part of your system of records or associate it with any individual's record which you have. Any requests for access to the list under the Freedom of Information Act or Privacy Act should be directed to the Inspection Service.

Kenneth A. Anderson, Rexburg, Ivan Barney, Rathdrum, Wayne Beck, Thorton, Leonard Brasham, Kootenai County, Roy E. Cliff, Priest River, Robert W. Dixon, Sandpoint, Ron K. Fairchild, Rupert, Del Ray Holm, Bonneville County, Charles H. Miller, Coeur d'Alene, Joseph E. Nielsen, Sugar City, Herman L. Shyping, Hayden Lake, and Jack A. William, Priest River.

Richard W. Bevan, Rexburg, Henry Joseph Blake, Jr., Sandpoint, Clair E. Blaser, Rexburg, Richard G. Butler, Hayden Lake, L. D. Harold Crawford, Priest River, Robert Eddy, Sandpoint, Glenn P. Glissner, Coeur d'Alene, William Matt Junttila, Priest River, S. M. Nelson, Hayden Lake, Detsel A. Parkinson, Rexburg, John D. Strode, Sandpoint, Jack H. Wright, Rexburg, and Roy G. Harn, Rathdrum.

We are currently in the process of identifying other individuals in your District who may have a propensity toward violence. Additional information will be forwarded periodically. Specific inquiries should be forwarded to this office as the need arises for additional information concerning any of the individuals listed above.

F. R. ROWE,
Regional Inspector.

Recognizing that some of the 25 persons on this second so-called violence list were responsible civic, political and religious leaders, I checked with local law enforcement officers to determine if any of these men had criminal records—particularly a record which would lead the IRS to consider them as being dangerous to contact. I found that, regardless of their individual attitudes toward filing and paying taxes or how their tax money was spent, there was no real evidence to justify the inclusion of their names by the IRS on a list of persons prone to violence other than the fact that they may belong to an organized tax-protest group.

Certainly, the IRS should be able to distinguish between a nonviolent tax-complainer and an aggressive activist tax-resister. No one can condone the nonpayment of taxes due by an individual, but the first amendment of the U.S. Constitution guarantees a person's right to complain as long as he does not violate the law. I suspect the only violence some of the people listed might have is the feeling they experience in being arbitrarily and even haphazardly placed on a roster of protestors prone to violence when they have properly filed and paid their taxes. It is a crime for some IRS bureaucrat, who is too lazy to do his homework, to prepare a list which can place the lives and honor of people in jeopardy.

When I learned that the IRS had intended to use a "violence list" in conjunction with an armed door to door search in eastern Idaho, I submitted the approximate date and general location of the project to IRS Assistant Commissioner Warren Bates with serious questions regarding IRS operations in my congressional district. In December 1977, under the Freedom of Information Act, Mr. Bates was requested to provide my office with specific documents related to my concerns, and I specifically asked for copies of inspection reports of an investigation of the armed search which I learned had been conducted. After considerable double-talk, vacillation and delay, I was to finally receive nothing of substance.

In the meantime, on December 13, 1977, I sent a detailed letter to IRS Commissioner Jerome Kurtz which stated in part:

Why would an IRS "violence list" be periodically circulated containing the names of Idaho citizens having no record of violence?

Why would IRS agents go to conservative meetings to make lists of license plate numbers which were then expanded to watch lists of names, addresses, business addresses and portions in the Mormon Church—and why were no liberal group similarly monitored, if extremists were the target?

Why would IRS agents anonymously contact individuals who politically complained of high taxes in letters to the Editor and place them under automatic investigation? The right of speech seems to have its liabilities.

Why should IRS have planned an armed door-to-door search by some 30 to 40 agents in communities north of Idaho Falls to demand the showing of tax returns, an operation finally halted at the Washington level when collection officers complained that someone might be hurt or killed?

Why would IRS agents maintain a full-scale clipping file from the newspapers on taxpayers regarding vacation trips and other activities? I'm not sure the taxpayers realize the extent to which individual privacy has been invaded by big government.

Over 2 months later on February 24, 1978, a reply was received from Mr. Kurtz, which included the following statements:

Your letter questions why the Internal Revenue Service maintained a so-called violence list and kept lists of license plate numbers of those attending certain meetings which you characterize as "conservative meetings". You also stated that the Internal Revenue Service had planned "armed searches" of taxpayers' homes in the Snake River area.

Based on the information then available, each of these questions seems to relate to certain actions undertaken to protect our personnel against tax protesters advocating violence. High level Internal Revenue Service managers were seriously concerned that certain tax protestors belonging to organizations which advocated the violent disruption of tax administration posed a threat to the physical safety of our enforcement personnel. This concern was shared by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). The principal group advocating violent interference with the administration of the tax laws was the Sheriff's Posse Comitatus (SPC). This group's activity initiated in the western part of the United States within the boundaries of our Western Region. Accordingly, most actions undertaken by the Service in response to those threats also occurred in the Western Region.

On December 5, 1975, the Deputy Commissioner issued guidelines to the Regional Commissioners and Regional Inspectors. The guidelines included: (1) the maintaining of liaison with other law enforcement agencies including the FBI by our Intelligence Division and Inspection Service; (2) authorization to solicit information concerning the SPC and similar organizations restricting that authorization to information that concerned individuals involved in efforts to disrupt tax administration, or to information directly tax related, or involving potential assaults or threats against Service employees. On July 26, 1976, the Deputy Commissioner issued a Manual Supplement (93G-171, renumbered 9G-35) on the same subject. Copies of the December 5, 1975 memorandum and the July 26, 1976 Manual Supplement, respectively, appear as Attachments 7 and 8 to this letter.

Pursuant to these directives, our Inspection Service began to gather information on various tax protester groups which, in their organizational documents or other pronouncements, advocated violent interference with the administration of the tax laws. During December, 1975, our Inspection Service in the Western Region furnished a list of names of 25 individuals who were reportedly members of groups advocating violence to the District Director, Boise, Idaho. The agencies which furnished the information to Inspection were the FBI, Idaho State Police and our own Intelligence Division. The Idaho State Police named two individuals as known members of the SPC. Of the other 23 names (all furnished to us by the FBI), all but two were listed on charter petitions of the SPC on file in various counties in Idaho. Of the remaining two, one individual was a reported member of the SPC who had been arrested on an assault charge by local police.* The other individual was reported to be a member of the Vigilant Committee of 10,000 by a local Idaho newspaper. According to local police sources in the Rexburg, Idaho, area, the Vigilant Committee of 10,000 also advocated the violent disruption of tax administration.

Some of the information obtained by Inspection from the sources described above did include license plate numbers of individuals who were attending or were parked in the vicinity of SPC meetings. However, the license plate information was never used as the sole basis for placing an individual's name on the list furnished to the District Director. Generally, no name was included on the list unless the person was also identified from some other source as being a member of the SPC or another organization advocating violence.

The purpose of the list was to provide management with some indication of those individuals who presented some threat to our personnel, so that our personnel, forewarned of the possibility of violence, could take appropriate precautions in carrying out their duties. This list was to be used for no other purpose, and we would appreciate being informed of any allegations of its use for other than its intended purpose. We have an obligation to protect the safety of our own personnel and I believe we would have been negligent to do less than we did in the face of the express goals of these groups.

The planned activities to which you refer in your letter as an "armed search" were also a reaction to concerns for the safety of our personnel in view of the activities of SPC and similar organizations. Among the compliance techniques occasionally used by the Service are canvassings of areas by revenue officers who knock on doors and ask occupants to produce a copy of their tax return as evidence of their compliance with the tax laws. Such canvassing techniques are usually performed in areas where comparisons with other publicly available information shows an abnormally low percentage of return filings. The revenue officer conducting the canvassing does not search the houses in question; rather, he or she asks the occupant to produce a return and, if no return is produced, simply notes this fact. These revenue officers are not armed.

Such a canvassing was planned for a community in the Snake River Valley. In view of the high number of identified SPC members in the area, however, local personnel considered having our unarmed revenue officers accompanied by special agents or by our Inspection personnel, who were to act as escorts, available to assist only in the event of violence against our unarmed personnel. In view of the possible confrontations which might have resulted, this proposed canvassing program was cancelled after review by appropriate management officials at the district, regional and national levels.

The response I received from Mr. Kurtz was both disturbing and puzzling—disturbing because his description and justification of the so-called planned activities—that is the armed search—did not square with IRS information in my possession and did not comply even to established IRS guidelines for employee safety which I herewith submit from an IRS memorandum dated April 25, 1977:

Protestors accounts (TDAs, TDI's, OI's, RCP's) are currently assigned directly to the Revenue Officer having responsibility for a particular area. Unless the assignment is preidentified as a protestor case (3949 TDI, correspondence, etc.), the Revenue Officer generally has no advance knowledge of a potential protestor problem.

Once the assignment has been identified as a "Protestor": the following precautions and instructions prevail:

1. Do not make an appointment with a known protestor outside of IRS facilities. This instruction is to promote an impromptu meeting with the protestor, so that he cannot gather his accomplices for any confrontations.
2. Whenever possible, two Revenue Service employees should be present when dealing with protestors.
3. Secure as much information as possible on first contact (e.i. books, records, bank accounts, history, financial statements, etc.)
4. Revenue Officers should not engage in a verbal exchange on constitutionality of the Revenue laws or valuation of currency philosophy.
5. If protestor or situation appears to be out of hand, withdraw immediately.

The puzzling part of the Kurtz reply was in how much he was willing to say about the proposed armed operation on one hand while on the other his assistant, Mr. Bates, was telling me that he could not provide any information regarding that project and, in fact, specifically denying the existence of any report on the operation described by Mr. Kurtz.

Shortly after I received these conflicting denials and descriptions from top IRS officials, I was able to obtain from other sources key portions of the so-called "nonexistent material" which, I have since learned, was apparently in the possession of Mr. Bates all the time he was making denials. The total picture of the armed confrontation is now available despite the Bates denials and considerable misinformation in the Kurtz letter.

The disjointed and unresponsive nature of the workings of the leadership of the Internal Revenue Service has demonstrated well the same weaknesses that cause the agency to continue to be hated and feared by a vast number of Americans who daily feel its unnecessarily arbitrary and heavy hand and too often receive only deceit and coverup instead of fair redress for grievances.

Mr. Kurtz states that the December 1975 list identified a high number of SPC members in the area in which the "canvassing activity" was to have taken place. This is patently untrue. First, the December list is plainly after the fact, since the IRS armed "canvassing activity" had already been planned, approved and then aborted over a month before the December list came into existence. Second, the December list does not even contain one name of a resident of Fremont County, where the armed Government agents planned to invade the homes of unwary taxpayers.

In other words, Mr. Kurtz justifies the planning and approval of an armed search with a list that was not applicable to the area involved and did not exist during the period of the operation. This is an intolerable abuse of the truth.

Mr. Kurtz claims that "the actions taken by the IRS were necessary to protect our personnel against tax protestors advocating violence." If Mr. Kurtz believes this—he lives in a pipedream. The IRS action as described by its own employees was geared to expose IRS agents to danger in an attempt to intimidate and terrorize people into tax compliance (even though most, if not all, of them were already in compliance).

Mr. Kurtz further states that the purpose of the list was to "provide management with some indication of those individuals who presented some threat to our personnel, so that our personnel forewarned of the possibility of violence, could take appropriate precautions in carrying out their duties. This list was to be used for no other purpose . . ." This is absolutely untrue. Mr. Kurtz obviously knew of the Fremont County RCP program since he describes it in his letter. This being the case, it is outrageous for him to claim that the list was not abused since it was to be used to precipitate a confrontation. In fact, the very idea of such a list is abusive, despotic and poses a serious threat to the lives, honor and constitutional rights of any citizen whose name appears thereon.

These illegal and immoral practices of the IRS have not ceased; instead they are spreading and becoming more flagrant. I have proof that the production and promulgation of these lists continues. The harassment, embarrassment, and legal and financial pressures applied by the IRS relentlessly even though some corrections are made from time to time. The civil and constitutional rights of taxpayer and employee are not in safe hands when an agency creates so-called violence lists to protect its agents from senior citizens, invalids and clergymen, and then goes to extravagant lengths to obscure the very existence of such lists.

An IRS employee recently expressed such concern when he stated:

My reason for asking to see someone outside the IRS system is that I do not trust IRS management because of prior scandals that have been covered up.

To finally drive home the fact that the IRS seems to view American taxpayers as basically dishonest, uncharitable, bigoted, criminal-minded and even violent to deal with, one only has to point out the fact that they recently (1978) changed the name of the division handling possible tax fraud cases from the Intelligence Division to Criminal Investigations Division. Considering the small fraction of those investigated who are indicted or convicted, this is an ugly choice of names, especially when one considers the onus it puts on that poor innocent taxpayer whose friends and business associates are contacted by the IRS criminal investigator.

A canvass was planned to solicit evidence from an area which was suspected of having a high percentage of violence-prone people who did not pay their taxes. The reason for the canvass was precisely that the IRS had already decided that its target group was hostile, in other words that confrontations were to be expected; in anticipation of these expected confrontations the service determined to provide armed escorts for its men.

Mr. Kurtz then turns 180 degrees and would have us believe that the canvass was canceled because, of all things, it might provoke confrontations. This means we are expected to believe that the reason for planning the raid was the reason for calling it off. The difficult job of the tax collector demands more responsible direction from its leaders.

In addition, Mr. Kurtz tells us that such canvasses are common and only the presence of armed agents makes this one different than IRS agents regularly go door to door asking people to produce their own copies of their tax returns as evidence of filing.

Any first year law student could tell Mr. Kurtz that production of a copy of a tax return is not evidence of anything, and particularly not evidence of having filed the original. On the other hand, failure to produce the tax report copy is not evidence of failure to file.

In addition to all this, that same first year law student could tell Mr. Kurtz that failure to file is not necessarily a crime and that a mere failure to file without much more information about the situation would tell his canvassing agent absolutely nothing. But remember who was to be canvassed in this situation, 167 people whom Mr. Kurtz erroneously passed off as a list of tax resisters. What did he expect such people to do?

Beyond even this comic opera aspect of collection enforcement, there is a much more serious question. Do IRS agents, at the direction of the Service, go about entrapping citizens on tax laws? Do they warn these citizens of their basic rights, that they have no duty to provide the agent anything? Do the canvassers tell their victims that consequences could follow from discussing their taxes with the Service without legal assistance?

They are, after all, seeking evidence of crime; that is, failure to file a tax return properly. Taken at its face value, Mr. Kurtz' explanation for an armed foray upon citizens against whom no charges had been filed, gives the picture of incompetent Government administration, armed with computers, legal process, and all awesome array of IRS fact-gathering, collection expertise and coercive brilliance, deciding instead, with or without guns, to send agents door to door to gather facts and enforce collection.

Knowing the background and experience of Mr. Kurtz, it is difficult, if not impossible, to take his explanation seriously. Rather it would seem obvious that the IRS had decided deliberately to create a confrontation in hopes of forcing an incident from which the IRS could massively react with public acceptance to be rid of those who protest and resist taxes. The IRS, after a shooting incident, could assert their need for even more guns, for even greater authority and to be exempt from respecting the "Bill of Rights."

All totalitarian governments have at least one agency which, in the name of protecting the regime, claims the right of total control of the citizens. We can do without an American Gestapo or KGB.

SPECIAL ORDERS GRANTED

By unanimous consent, permission to address the House following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered, was granted to:

(The following Member (at the request of Mr. HANSEN) to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous matter:)

Mr. HANSEN, for 60 minutes today, and to include extraneous matter notwithstanding the fact that it exceeds two pages of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD and is estimated by the Public Printer to cost $2,304.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

By unanimous consent, permission to revise and extend remarks was granted to:

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. HANSEN) and to include extraneous matter:)

Mr. CARNEY.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. WILLIAMS of Montana. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly (at 12 o'clock and 7 minutes p.m.), under its previous order, the House adjourned until Wednesday, February 21, 1979, at 3 p.m.

REGULATION OF LOBBYING ACT

In compliance with Public Law 601, 79th Congress, title III, Regulation of Lobbying Act, section 308(b), which provides as follows:

(b) All information required to be filed under the provisions of this section with the Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate shall be compiled by said Clerk and Secretary, acting jointly, as soon as practicable after the close of the calendar quarter with respect to which such information is filed and shall be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate jointly submit their report of the compilation required by said law and have included all registrations and quarterly reports received.

REGISTRATIONS*

*All alphanumeric characters and monetary amounts refer to receipts and expenditures on page 2, paragraphs D and E of the Quarterly Report Form.

The following registrations were submitted for the third calendar quarter 1978:

(NOTE.—The form used for report is reproduced below. In the interest of economy in the RECORD, questions are not repeated, only the essential answers are printed, and are indicated by their respective letter and number.)

FILE ONE COPY WITH THE SECRETARY OF THE SENATE AND FILE TWO COPIES WITH THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

PLACE AN "X" BELOW THE APPROPRIATE LETTER OR FIGURE IN THE BOX AT THE RIGHT OF THE "REPORT" HEADING BELOW:

"PRELIMINARY" REPORT ("Registration"): To "register," place an "X" below the letter "P" and fill out page 1 only.

"QUARTERLY" REPORT: To indicate which one of the four calendar quarters is covered by this Report, place an "X" below the appropriate figure. Fill out both page 1 and page 2 and as many additional pages as may be required. The first additional page should be numbered as page "3," and the rest of such pages should be "4," "5," "6," etc. Preparation and filing in accordance with instructions will accomplish compliance with all quarterly reporting requirements of the Act.

REPORT

Year: 19-----

PURSUANT TO FEDERAL REGULATION OF LOBBYING ACT

P	QUARTER
	1st	2d	3d	4th

(Mark one square only)

NOTE ON ITEM "A".—(a) IN GENERAL. This "Report" form may be used by either an organization or an individual, as follows:

- (1) "Employee".—To file as an "employee," state (in Item "B") the name, address, and nature of business of the "employer". (If the "employee" is a firm [such as a law firm or public relations firm], partners and salaried staff members of such firm may join in filing a Report as an "employee".)
- (1) "Employer".—To file as an "employer", write "None" in answer to Item "B".
- (b) SEPARATE REPORTS. An agent or employee should not attempt to combine his Report with the employer's Report:
 - (i) Employers subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their agents or employees.
 - (ii) Employees subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their employers.

A. ORGANIZATION OR INDIVIDUAL FILING:

1. State name, address, and nature of business.

2. If this Report is for an Employer, list names of agents or employees who will file Reports for this Quarter.

NOTE ON ITEM "B".—Reports by Agents or Employees. An employee is to file, each quarter, as many Reports as he has employers, except that: (a) If a particular undertaking is jointly financed by a group of employers, the group is to be considered as one employer, but all members of the group are to be named, and the contribution of each member is to be specified; (b) if the work is done in the interest of one person but payment therefor is made by another, a single Report—naming both persons as "employers"—is to be filed each quarter.

B. EMPLOYER.—State name, address, and nature of business. If there is no employer, write "None."

NOTE ON ITEM "C".—(a) The expression "in connection with legislative interests," as used in this Report, means "in connection with attempting, directly or indirectly, to influence the passage or defeat of legislation." "The term 'legislation' means bills, resolutions, amendments, nominations, and other matters pending or proposed in either House of Congress, and includes any other matter which may be the subject of action by either House"—§ 302(e).

(b) Before undertaking any activities in connection with legislative interests, organizations and individuals subject to the Lobbying Act are required to file a "Preliminary" Report (Registration).

(c) After beginning such activities, they must file a "Quarterly" Report at the end of each calendar quarter in which they have either received or expended anything of value in connection with legislative interests.

C. LEGISLATIVE INTERESTS, AND PUBLICATIONS in connection therewith:

1. State approximately how long legislative interests are to continue. If receipts and expenditures in connection with legislative interests have terminated, place an "X" in the box at the left, so that this Office will no longer expect to receive Reports.

2. State the general legislative interests of the person filing and set forth the specific legislative interests by reciting: (a) Short titles of statutes and bills; (b) House and Senate numbers of bills, where known; (c) citations of statutes, where known; (d) whether for or against such statutes and bills.

3. In the case of those publications which the person filing has caused to be issued or distributed in connection with legislative interests, set forth: (a) Description, (b) quantity distributed; (c) date of distribution, (d) name of printer or publisher (if publications were paid for by person filing) or name of donor (if publications were received as a gift).

(Answer items 1, 2, and 3 in the space below. Attach additional pages if more space is needed)

4. If this is a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) rather than a "Quarterly" Report, state below what the nature and amount of anticipated expenses will be; and if for an agent or employee, state also what the daily, monthly, or annual rate of compensation is to be. If this is a "Quarterly" Report, disregard this item "C4" and fill out item "D" and "E" on the back of this page. Do not attempt to combine a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) with a "Quarterly" Report.

QUARTERLY REPORTS*

*All alphanumeric characters and monetary amounts refer to receipts and expenditures on page 2, paragraphs D and E of the Quarterly Report Form.

The following quarterly reports were submitted for the first calendar quarter 1973:

(NOTE.—The form used for registration is reproduced below. In the interest of economy in the RECORD, questions are not repeated, only the essential answers are printed, and are indicated by their respective letter and number.)

FILE ONE COPY WITH THE SECRETARY OF THE SENATE AND FILE TWO COPIES WITH THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

PLACE AN "X" BELOW THE APPROPRIATE LETTER OR FIGURE IN THE BOX AT THE RIGHT OF THE "REPORT" HEADING BELOW:

"PRELIMINARY" REPORT ("Registration"): To "register," place an "X" below the letter "P" and fill out page 1 only.

"QUARTERLY" REPORT: To indicate which one of the four calendar quarters is covered by this Report, place an "X" below the appropriate figure. Fill out both page 1 and page 2 and as many additional pages as may be required. The first additional page should be numbered as page "3," and the rest of such pages should be "4," "5," "6," etc. Preparation and filing in accordance with instructions will accomplish compliance with all quarterly reporting requirements of the Act.

NOTE ON ITEM "A".—(a) IN GENERAL. This "Report" form may be used by either an organization or an individual, as follows:

- (1) "Employee".—To file as an "employee", state (in Item "B") the name, address, and nature of business of the "employer". (If the "employee" is a firm [such as a law firm or public relations firm], partners and salaried staff members of such firm may join in filing a Report as an "employee".)
- (2) "Employer".—To file as an "employer", write "None" in answer to Item "B".
- (b) SEPARATE REPORTS. An agent or employee should not attempt to combine his Report with the employer's Report:
 - (1) Employers subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their agents or employees.
 - (2) Employees subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their employers.

A. ORGANIZATION OR INDIVIDUAL FILING:

1. State name, address, and nature of business.

2. If this Report is for an Employer, list names of agents or employees who will file Reports for this Quarter.

NOTE ON ITEM "B".—Reports by Agents or Employees. An employee is to file, each quarter, as many Reports as he has employers, except that: (a) If a particular undertaking is jointly financed by a group of employers, the group is to be considered as one employer, but all members of the group are to be named, and the contribution of each member is to be specified; (b) If the work is done in the interest of one person but payment therefor is made by another, a single Report—naming both persons as "employers"—is to be filed each quarter.

B. EMPLOYER.—State name, address, and nature of business. If there is no employer, write "None."

NOTE ON ITEM "C".—(a) The expression "in connection with legislative interests," as used in this Report, means "in connection with attempting, directly or indirectly, to influence the passage or defeat of legislation." "The term 'legislation' means bills, resolutions, amendments, nominations, and other matters pending or proposed in either House of Congress, and includes any other matter which may be the subject of action by either House"—§ 302(e).

(b) Before undertaking any activities in connection with legislative interests, organizations and individuals subject to the Lobbying Act are required to file a "Preliminary" Report (Registration).

(c) After beginning such activities, they must file a "Quarterly" Report at the end of each calendar quarter in which they have either received or expended anything of value in connection with legislative interests.

C. LEGISLATIVE INTERESTS, AND PUBLICATIONS in connection therewith:

1. State approximately how long legislative interests are to continue. If receipts and expenditures in connection with legislative interests have terminated, place an "X" in the box at the left, so that this Office will no longer expect to receive Reports.

2. State the general legislative interests of the person filing and set forth the specific legislative interests by reciting: (a) Short titles of statutes and bills; (b) House and Senate numbers of bills, where known; (c) citations of statutes, where known; (d) whether for or against such statutes and bills.

3. In the case of those publications which the person filing has caused to be issued or distributed in connection with legislative interests, set forth: (a) Description, (b) quantity distributed; (c) date of distribution, (d) name of printer or publisher (if publications were paid for by person filing) or name of donor (if publications were received as a gift).

(Answer items 1, 2, and 3 in the space below. Attach additional pages if more space is needed)

4. If this is a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) rather than a "Quarterly" Report, state below what the nature and amount of anticipated expenses will be; and if for an agent or employee, state also what the daily, monthly, or annual rate of compensation is to be. If this is a "Quarterly" Report, disregard this item "C4" and fill out item "D" and "E" on the back of this page. Do not attempt to combine a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) with a "Quarterly" Report.

COPIES WITH THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

NOTE ON ITEM "D."—(a) In General. The term "contribution" includes anything of value. When an organization or individual uses printed or duplicated matter in a campaign attempting to influence legislation, money received by such organization or individual—for such printed or duplicated matter—is a "contribution." "The term 'contribution' includes a gift, subscription, loan, advance, or deposit of money, or anything of value, and includes a contract, promise, or agreement, whether or not legally enforceable, to make a contribution"—Section 302(a) of the Lobbying Act.

(b) IF THIS REPORT IS FOR AN EMPLOYER.—(1) In General. Item "D" is designed for the reporting of all receipts from which expenditures are made, or will be made, in accordance with legislative interests.

(ii) Receipts of Business Firms and Individuals.—A business firm (or individual) which is subject to the Lobbying Act by reason of expenditures which it makes in attempting to influence legislation—but which has no funds to expend except those which are available in the ordinary course of operating a business not connected in any way with the influencing of legislation—will have no receipts to report, even though it does have expenditures to report.

(iii) Receipts of Multipurpose Organizations.—Some organizations do not receive any funds which are to be expended solely for the purpose of attempting to influence legislation. Such organizations make such expenditures out of a general fund raised by dues, assessments, or other contributions. The percentage of the general fund which is used for such expenditures indicates the percentage of dues, assessments, or other contributions which may be considered to have been paid for that purpose. Therefore, in reporting receipts, such organizations may specify what that percentage is, and report their dues, assessments, and other contributions on that basis. However, each contributor of $500 or more is to be listed, regardless of whether the contribution was made solely for legislative purposes.

(c) IF THIS REPORT IS FOR AN AGENT OR EMPLOYEE.—(1) In General. In the case of many employees, all receipts will come under Items "D 5" (received for services) and "D 12" (expense money and reimbursements). In the absence of a clear statement to the contrary, it will be presumed that your employer is to reimburse you for all expenditures which you make in connection with legislative interests.

(ii) Employer as Contributor of $500 or More.—When your contribution from your employer (in the form of salary, fee, etc.) amounts to $500 or more, it is not necessary to report such contribution under "D 13" and "D 14," since the amount has already been reported under "D 5," and the name of the "employer" has been given under Item "B" on page 1 of this report.

D. RECEIPTS (INCLUDING CONTRIBUTIONS AND LOANS):

Fill in every blank. If the answer to any numbered item is "None," write "None" in the space following the number.

QUARTERLY REPORTS*

*All alphanumeric characters and monetary amounts refer to receipts and expenditures on page 2, paragraphs D and E of the Quarterly Report Form.

The following reports for the third calendar quarter of 1978 were received too late to be included in the published reports for that quarter:

(NOTE.—The form used for report is reproduced below. In the interest of economy in the RECORD, questions are not repeated, only the essential answers are printed, and are indicated by their respective letter and number.)

FILE ONE COPY WITH THE SECRETARY OF THE SENATE AND FILE TWO COPIES WITH THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

PLACE AN "X" BELOW THE APPROPRIATE LETTER OR FIGURE IN THE BOX AT THE RIGHT OF THE "REPORT" HEADING BELOW:

"PRELIMINARY" REPORT ("Registration"): To "register," place an "X" below the letter "P" and fill out page 1 only.

REPORT

PURSUANT TO FEDERAL REGULATION OF LOBBYING ACT

NOTE ON ITEM "A".—(a) IN GENERAL. This "Report" form may be used by either an organization or an individual, as follows:

- (1) "Employee".—To file as an "employee", state (in Item "B") the name, address, and nature of business of the "employer". (If the "employee" is a firm [such as a law firm or public relations firm], partners and salaried staff members of such firm may join in filing a Report as an "employee".)
- (2) "Employer".—To file as an "employer", write "None" in answer to Item "B".
- (b) SEPARATE REPORTS. An agent or employee should not attempt to combine his Report with the employer's Report:
 - (1) Employers subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their agents or employees.
 - (2) Employees subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their employers.

A. ORGANIZATION OR INDIVIDUAL FILING:

1. State name, address, and nature of business.

2. If this Report is for an Employer, list names of agents or employees who will file Reports for this Quarter.

NOTE ON ITEM "B".—Reports by Agents or Employees. An employee is to file, each quarter, as many Reports as he has employers, except that: (a) If a particular undertaking is jointly financed by a group of employers, the group is to be considered as one employer, but all members of the group are to be named, and the contribution of each member is to be specified; (b) if the work is done in the interest of one person but payment therefor is made by another, a single Report—naming both persons as "employers"—is to be filed each quarter.

B. EMPLOYER.—State name, address, and nature of business. If there is no employer, write "None."

NOTE ON ITEM "C".—(a) The expression "in connection with legislative interests," as used in this Report, means "in connection with attempting, directly or indirectly, to influence the passage or defeat of legislation." "The term 'legislation' means bills, resolutions, amendments, nominations, and other matters pending or proposed in either House of Congress, and includes any other matter which may be the subject of action by either House"—§ 302(e).

(b) Before undertaking any activities in connection with legislative interests, organizations and individuals subject to the Lobbying Act are required to file a "Preliminary" Report (Registration).

(c) After beginning such activities, they must file a "Quarterly" Report at the end of each calendar quarter in which they have either received or expended anything of value in connection with legislative interests.

C. LEGISLATIVE INTERESTS, AND PUBLICATIONS in connection therewith:

1. State approximately how long legislative interests are to continue. If receipts and expenditures in connection with legislative interests have terminated, ☐ place an "X" in the box at the left, so that this Office will no longer expect to receive Reports.

2. State the general legislative interests of the person filing and set forth the specific legislative interests by reciting: (a) Short titles of statutes and bills; (b) House and Senate numbers of bills, where known; (c) citations of statutes, where known; (d) whether for or against such statutes and bills.

3. In the case of those publications which the person filing has caused to be issued or distributed in connection with legislative interests, set forth: (a) Description, (b) quantity distributed; (c) date of distribution, (d) name of printer or publisher (if publications were paid for by person filing) or name of donor (if publications were received as a gift).

(Answer items 1, 2, and 3 in the space below. Attach additional pages if more space is needed)

4. If this is a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) rather than a "Quarterly" Report, state below what the nature and amount of anticipated expenses will be; and if for an agent or employee, state also what the daily, monthly, or annual rate of compensation is to be. If this is a "Quarterly" Report, disregard this item "C4" and fill out item "D" and "E" on the back of this page. Do not attempt to combine a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) with a "Quarterly" Report.◀

QUARTERLY LOBBY POSTCARD

The following Quarterly Lobby Postcards were filed with the Clerk of the House of Representatives for the third calendar quarter of 1979:

A POSTCARD MAY BE USED WHEN A REGISTRANT HAS NOT INCURRED REPORTABLE RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES AND HAS NOT ENGAGED IN ANY LOBBYING ACTIVITY DURING THE QUARTER.

NOTE: THE FOLLOWING INFORMATION IS BEING PROVIDED FOR INFORMATIONAL PURPOSES ONLY.

The Postcard has been reproduced below:

HLF3

QUARTERLY LOBBY POSTCARD

To be submitted in lieu of a Quarterly Report when registrant has not incurred reportable receipts or expenditures and has not engaged in any lobbying activity during the quarter.

IMPORTANT: File a separate postcard for each employer or client

REGISTRANT

Business Address

(number, street/P.O. Box)

(city, state, zip code)

Employer

(If REGISTRANT is an agent of someone OTHER THAN "EMPLOYER" state below whose interest is represented. If not applicable, state "NONE".)

CLIENT

For the period (check one box only):

☐ April 10 Report (Jan. 1—Mar. 31)

☐ July 10 Report (April 1—June 30)

19 _____

☐ Oct. 10 (July 1—Sept. 30)

☐ Jan. 10 (Oct. 1—Dec. 31)

I certify that the above named registrant did not engage in any lobbying activities or incur reportable receipts or expenditures in connection with previous or future lobbying activities. I am aware that the Act requires a resumption of reporting in the event that activity commences; otherwise I can continue to submit a postcard in lieu of a report.

SENATE—Monday, February 19, 1979

(Legislative day of Monday, January 15, 1979)

The Senate met at 12 o'clock meridian, pursuant to House Concurrent Resolution 42, and was called to order by the Honorable HOWELL T. HEFLIN, a Senator from the State of Alabama.

PRAYER

The Presiding Officer, the Honorable HOWELL T. HEFLIN, offered the following prayer:

In the absence of the Chaplain, we shall pray today in the words of President George Washington's prayer for his country.

Let us pray:

"Almighty God: We make our earnest prayer that Thou wilt keep the United States in Thy holy protection; that Thou wilt incline the hearts of the citizens to cultivate a spirit of subordination and obedience to government; and entertain a brotherly affection and love for one another and for their fellow citizens of the United States at large. And finally that Thou wilt most graciously be pleased to dispose us all to do justice, to love mercy and to demean ourselves with that charity, humility, and pacific temper of mind which were the characteristics of the Divine Author of our blessed religion, and without a humble imitation of whose example in these things we can never hope to be a happy nation. Grant our supplication, we beseech Thee, through Jesus Christ our Lord." Amen.

Having completed George Washington's prayer, let me add these words of prayer: May the beauty of the snow give us a serenity of mind and the weather's resulting slowness to mobility give us a determination to get on with the business of this Nation as soon as possible.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. MAGNUSON).

The acting legislative clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,
Washington, D.C., February 19, 1979.

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, section 3 of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable HOWELL T. HEFLIN, a Senator from the State of Alabama, to perform the duties of the Chair.

WARREN G. MAGNUSON,
President pro tempore.

Mr. HEFLIN thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF LEADERSHIP

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair now recognizes the Senator from Montana (Mr. BAUCUS) who is the acting Senate majority leader.

THE JOURNAL

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Journal be approved to date.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ORDER FOR RECESS UNTIL WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1979

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today it stand in recess until the hour of 12 o'clock noon on Wednesday, February 21, 1979.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

READING OF WASHINGTON'S FAREWELL ADDRESS

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the order of the Senate of January 24, 1901, as modified on February 9, 1979, the Senator from Virginia (Mr. WARNER), having been appointed by the Vice President, will now read Washington's Farewell Address.

Mr. WARNER. I thank the Chair, my colleagues, the Senate staff, who are to be commended for their fortitude in getting here today, and an assemblage of citizens of the United States and perhaps other countries who have joined us on this historic day.

It is a great honor for a freshman Senator from Virginia to give this historic address, which is done in keeping with the long traditions of the U.S. Senate.

I find, Mr. President, as I am sure the Chair does and my colleagues, that there are many thoughts in our first President's Farewell Address that the leaders of this Nation could take to heart today when our country faces so many grave decisions throughout the world.

Mr. President, I will now proceed.

Mr. WARNER, at the rostrum read the Farewell Address, as follows:

To the people of the United States.

FRIENDS AND FELLOW CITIZENS: The period for a new election of a citizen to administer the executive government of the United States being not far distant, and the time actually arrived when your thoughts must be employed in designating the person who is to be clothed with that important trust, it appears to me proper, especially as it may conduce to a more distinct expression of the public voice, that I should now apprise you of the resolution I have formed, to decline being considered among the number of those, out of whom a choice is to be made.

I beg you, at the same time, to do me the justice to be assured, that this resolution has not been taken, without a strict regard to all the considerations appertaining to the relation which binds a dutiful citizen to his country; and that, in withdrawing the tender of service which silence in my situation might imply, I am influenced by no diminution of zeal for your future interest; no deficiency of grateful respect for your past kindness; but am supported by a full conviction that the step is compatible with both.

The acceptance of, and continuance hitherto in the office to which your suffrages have twice called me, have been a uniform sacrifice of inclination to the opinion of duty, and to a deference for what appeared to be your desire. I constantly hoped that it would have been much earlier in my power, consistently with motives which I was not at liberty to disregard, to return to that retirement from which I had been reluctantly drawn. The strength of my inclination to do this, previous to the last election, had even led to the preparation of an address to declare it to you; but mature reflection on the then perplexed and critical posture of our affairs with foreign nations, and the unanimous advice of persons entitled to my confidence, impelled me to abandon the idea.

I rejoice that the state of your concerns external as well as internal, no longer renders the pursuit of inclination incompatible with the sentiment of duty or propriety; and am persuaded, whatever partiality may be retained for my services, that in the present circumstances of our country, you will not disapprove my determination to retire.

The impressions with which I first undertook the arduous trust, were explained on the proper occasion. In the discharge of this trust, I will only say that I have, with good intentions, contributed towards the organization and administration of the government, the best exertions of which a very fallible judgment was capable. Not unconscious in the outset, of the inferiority of my qualifications, experience, in my own eyes, perhaps still more in the eyes of others, has strengthened the motives to diffidence of myself; and, every day, the increasing weight of years admonishes me more and more, that the shade of retirement is as necessary to me as it will be welcome. Satisfied that if any circumstances have given peculiar value to my services they were temporary, I have the consolation to believe that, while choice and prudence invite me to quit the political scene, patriotism does not forbid it.

• This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by the Member on the floor.

In looking forward to the moment which is to terminate the career of my political life, my feelings do not permit me to suspend the deep acknowledgment of that debt of gratitude which I owe to my beloved country, for the many honors it has conferred upon me; still more for the steadfast confidence with which it has supported me; and for the opportunities I have thence enjoyed of manifesting my inviolable attachment, by services faithful and persevering, though in usefulness unequal to my zeal. If benefits have resulted to our country from these services, let it always be remembered to your praise, and as an instructive example in our annals, that under circumstances in which the passions, agitated in every direction, were liable to mislead amidst appearances sometimes dubious, vicissitudes of fortune often discouraging—in situations in which not unfrequently, want of success has countenanced the spirit of criticism,—the constancy of your support was the essential prop of the efforts and a guarantee of the plans, by which they were effected. Profoundly penetrated with this idea, I shall carry it with me to my grave, as a strong incitement to unceasing vows that heaven may continue to you the choicest tokens of its beneficence—that your union and brotherly affection may be perpetual—that the free constitution, which is the work of your hands, may be sacredly maintained—that its administration in every department may be stamped with wisdom and virtue—that, in fine, the happiness of the people of these states, under the auspices of liberty, may be made complete by so careful a preservation, and so prudent a use of this blessing, as will acquire to them the glory of recommending it to the applause, the affection and adoption of every nation which is yet a stranger to it.

Here, perhaps, I ought to stop. But a solicitude for your welfare, which cannot end but with my life, and the apprehension of danger, natural to that solicitude, urge me, on an occasion like the present, to offer to your solemn contemplation, and to recommend to your frequent review, some sentiments which are the result of much reflection, of no inconsiderable observation and which appear to me all important to the permanency of your felicity as a people. These will be offered to you with the more freedom, as you can only see in them the disinterested warnings of a parting friend, who can possibly have no personal motive to bias his counsel. Nor can I forget, as an encouragement to it, your indulgent reception of my sentiments on a former and not dissimilar occasion.

Interwoven as is the love of liberty with every ligament of your hearts, no recommendation of mine is necessary to fortify or confirm the attachment.

The unity of government which constitutes you one people, is also now dear to you. It is justly so; for it is a main pillar in the edifice of your real independence; the support of your tranquility at home; your peace abroad; of your safety; of your prosperity; of that very liberty which you so highly prize. But, as it is easy to foresee that, from different causes and from different quarters much pains will be taken, many artifices employed, to weaken in your minds the conviction of this truth; as this is the point in your political fortress against which the batteries of internal and external enemies will be most constantly and actively (though often covertly and insidiously) directed; it is of infinite moment, that you should properly estimate the immense value of your national union to your collective and individual happiness; that you should cherish a cordial, habitual, and immovable attachment to it; accustoming yourselves to think and speak of it as of the palladium of your political safety and prosperity; watching for its preservation with jealous anxiety; discountenancing whatever may suggest even a suspicion that it can, in any event, be abandoned; and indignantly frowning upon the first dawning of every attempt to alienate any portion of our country from the rest, or to enfeeble the sacred ties which now link together the various parts.

For this you have every inducement of sympathy and interest. Citizens by birth, or choice, of a common country, that country has a right to concentrate your affections. The name of American, which belongs to you in your national capacity, must always exalt the just pride of patriotism, more than any appellation derived from local discriminations. With slight shades of difference, you have the same religion, manners, habits, and political principles. You have, in a common cause, fought and triumphed together; the independence and liberty you possess, are the work of joint counsels, and joint efforts, of common dangers, sufferings and successes.

But these considerations, however powerfully they address themselves to your sensibility, are greatly outweighed by those which apply more immediately to your interest.—Here, every portion of our country finds the most commanding motives for carefully guarding and preserving the union of the whole.

The north, in an unrestrained intercourse with the south, protected by the equal laws of a common government, finds in the productions of the latter, great additional resources of maritime and commercial enterprise, and precious materials of manufacturing industry.—The south, in the same intercourse, benefiting by the same agency of the north, sees its agriculture grow and its commerce expand. Turning partly into its own channels the seamen of the north, it finds its particular navigation invigorated; and while it contributes, in different ways, to nourish and increase the general mass of the national navigation, it looks forward to the protection of a maritime strength, to which itself is unequally adapted. The east, in a like intercourse with the west, already finds, and in the progressive improvement of interior communications by land and water, will more and more find a valuable vent for the commodities which it brings from abroad, or manufactures at home. The west derives from the east supplies requisite to its growth and comfort—and what is perhaps of still greater consequence, it must of necessity owe the secure enjoyment of indispensable outlets for its own productions, to the weight, influence, and the future maritime strength of the Atlantic side of the Union, directed by an indissoluble community of interest as one nation. Any other tenure by which the west can hold this essential advantage, whether derived from its own separate strength; or from an apostate and unnatural connection with any foreign power, must be intrinsically precarious.

While then every part of our country thus feels an immediate and particular interest in union, all the parts combined cannot fail to find in the united mass of means and efforts, greater strength, greater resource proportionably greater security from external danger, a less frequent interruption of their peace by foreign nations; and, what is of inestimable value, they must derive from union, an exemption from those broils and wars between themselves, which so frequently afflict neighboring countries not tied together by the same government; which their own rivalry alone would be sufficient to produce, but which opposite foreign alliances, attachments, and intrigues, would stimulate and embitter.—Hence likewise, they will avoid the necessity of those overgrown military establishments, which under any form of government are inauspicious to liberty, and which are to be regarded as particularly hostile to republican liberty. In this sense it is, that your union ought to be considered as a main prop of your liberty, and that the love of the one ought to endear to you the preservation of the other.

These considerations speak a persuasive language to every reflecting and virtuous mind, and exhibit the continuance of the union as a primary object of patriotic desire. Is there a doubt whether a common government can embrace so large a sphere? let experience solve it. To listen to mere speculation in such a case were criminal. We are authorized to hope that a proper organization of the whole, with the auxiliary agency of governments for the respective subdivisions, will afford a happy issue to the experiment. It is well worth a fair and full experiment. With such powerful and obvious motives to union, affecting all parts of our country, while experience shall not have demonstrated its impracticability, there will always be reason to distrust the patriotism of those who, in any quarter, may endeavor to weaken its hands.

In contemplating the causes which may disturb our Union, it occurs as matter of serious concern, that any ground should have been furnished for characterizing parties by geographical discriminations—northern and southern—Atlantic and western; whence designing men may endeavor to excite a belief that there is a real difference of local interests and views. One of the expedients of party to acquire influence within particular districts, is to misrepresent the opinions and aims of other districts. You cannot shield yourselves too much against the jealousies and heart burnings which spring from these misrepresentations: they tend to render alien to each other those who ought to be bound together by fraternal affection. The inhabitants of our western country have lately had a useful lesson on this head: they have seen, in the negotiation by the executive, and in the unanimous ratification by the senate of the treaty with Spain, and in the universal satisfaction at the event throughout the United States, a decisive proof how unfounded were the suspicions propagated among them of a policy in the general government and in the Atlantic states, unfriendly to their interests in regard to the Mississippi. They have been witnesses to the formation of two treaties, that with Great Britain and that with Spain, which secure to them everything they could desire, in respect to our foreign relations, towards confirming their prosperity. Will it not be their wisdom to rely for the preservation of these advantages on the union by which they were procured? Will they not henceforth be deaf to those advisers, if such they are, who would sever them from their brethren and connect them with aliens?

To the efficacy and permanency of your Union, a government for the whole is indispensable. No alliances, however strict, between the parts can be an adequate substitute; they must inevitably experience the infractions and interruptions which all alliances, in all times, have experienced. Sensible of this momentous truth, you have improved upon your first essay, by the adoption of a constitution of government, better calculated than your former, for an intimate union, and for the efficacious management of your common concerns. This government, the offspring of our own choice, uninfluenced and unawed, adopted upon full investigation and mature deliberation, completely free in its principles, in the distribution of its powers, uniting security with energy, and containing within itself a provision for its own amendment, has a just claim to your confidence and your support. Respect for its authority, compliance with its laws, acquiescence in its measures, are duties enjoined by the fundamental maxims of true liberty. The basis of our political systems is the right of the people to make and to alter their constitutions of government.—But the constitution which at any time exists, until changed by an explicit and authentic act of the whole people, is sacredly obligatory upon all. The very idea of the power, and the right of the people to establish government, presupposes the duty of every individual to obey the established government.

All obstructions to the execution of the laws, all combinations and associations under whatever plausible character, with the real design to direct, control, counteract, or awe the regular deliberations and action of the constituted authorities, are destructive of this fundamental principle, and of fatal tendency.—They serve to organize faction, to give it an artificial and extraordinary force, to put in the place of the delegated will of the nation the will of party, often a small but artful and enterprising minority of the community; and, according to the alternate triumphs of different parties, to make the public administration the mirror of the ill concerted and incongruous projects of faction, rather than the organ of consistent and wholesome plans digested by common councils, and modified by mutual interests.

However combinations or associations of the above description may now and then answer popular ends, they are likely, in the course of time and things, to become potent engines, by which cunning, ambitious, and unprincipled men, will be enabled to subvert the power of the people, and to usurp for themselves the reins of government; destroying afterwards the very engines which have lifted them to unjust dominion.

Towards the preservation of your government and the permanency of your present happy state, it is requisite, not only that you steadily discountenance irregular opposition to its acknowledged authority, but also that you resist with care the spirit of innovation upon its principles, however specious the pretext. One method of assault may be to effect, in the forms of the constitution, alterations which will impair the energy of the system; and thus to undermine what cannot be directly overthrown. In all the changes to which you may be invited, remember that time and habit are at least as necessary to fix the true character of governments, as of other human institutions:—that experience is the surest standard by which to test the real tendency of the existing constitution of a country:—that facility in changes, upon the credit of mere hypothesis and opinion, exposes to perpetual change from the endless variety of hypothesis and opinion: and remember, especially, that for the efficient management of your common interests in a country so extensive as ours, a government of as much vigor as is consistent with the perfect security of liberty is indispensable. Liberty itself will find in such a government, with powers properly distributed and adjusted, its surest guardian. It is, indeed, little else than a name, where the government is too feeble to withstand the enterprises of faction, to confine each member of the society within the limits prescribed by the laws, and to maintain all in the secure and tranquil enjoyment of the rights of person and property.

I have already intimated to you the danger of parties in the state, with particular references to the founding them on geographical discrimination. Let me now take a more comprehensive view, and warn you in the most solemn manner against the baneful effects of the spirit of party generally.

This spirit, unfortunately, is inseparable from our nature, having its root in the strongest passions of the human mind.—It exists under different shapes in all governments, more or less stifled, controlled, or repressed; but in those of the popular form it is seen in its greatest rankness, and is truly their worst enemy.

The alternate domination of one faction over another, sharpened by the spirit of revenge natural to party dissension, which in different ages and countries has perpetrated the most horrid enormities, is itself a frightful despotism.—But this leads at length to a more formal and permanent despotism. The disorders and miseries which result, gradually incline the minds of men to seek security and repose in the absolute power of an individual; and, sooner or later, the chief of some prevailing faction, more able or more fortunate than his competitors, turns this disposition to the purpose of his own elevation on the ruins of public liberty.

Without looking forward to an extremity of this kind, (which nevertheless ought not to be entirely out of sight) the common and continual mischiefs of the spirit of party are sufficient to make it the interest and duty of a wise people to discourage and restrain it.

It serves always to distract the public councils, and enfeeble the public administration. It agitates the community with ill founded jealousies and false alarms; kindles the animosity of one part against another; forments occasional riot and insurrection. It opens the door to foreign influence and corruption, which finds a facilitated access to the government itself through the channels of party passions. Thus the policy and the will of one country are subjected to the policy and will of another.

There is an opinion that parties in free countries are useful checks upon the administration of the government, and serve to keep alive the spirit of liberty. This within certain limits is probably true; and in governments of a monarchical cast, patriotism may look with indulgence, if not with favor, upon the spirit of party. But in those of the popular character, in governments purely elective, it is a spirit not to be encouraged. From their natural tendency, it is certain there will always be enough of that spirit for every salutary purpose. And there being constant danger of excess, the effort ought to be, by force of public opinion, to mitigate and assuage it. A fire not to be quenched, it demands a uniform vigilance to prevent it bursting into a flame, lest instead of warming, it should consume.

It is important likewise, that the habits of thinking in a free country should inspire caution in those intrusted with its administration, to confine themselves within their respective constitutional spheres, avoiding in the exercise of the powers of one department, to encroach upon another. The spirit of encroachment tends to consolidate the powers of all the departments in one, and thus to create, whatever the form of government, a real despotism. A just estimate of that love of power and proneness to abuse it which predominate in the human heart, is sufficient to satisfy us of the truth of this position. The necessity of reciprocal checks in the exercise of political power, by dividing and distributing it into different depositories, and constituting each the guardian of the public weal against invasions of the others, has been evinced by experiments ancient and modern: some of them in our country and under our own eyes.—To preserve them must be as necessary as to institute them. If, in the opinion of the people, the distribution or modification of the constitutional powers be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by an amendment in the way which the constitution designates.—But let there be no change by usurpation; for through this, in one instance, may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed. The precedent must always greatly overbalance in permanent evil any partial or transient benefit which the use can at any time yield.

Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports. In vain would that man claim the tribute of patriotism, who should labor to subvert these great pillars of human happiness, these firmest props of the duties of men and citizens. The mere politician, equally with the pious man, ought to respect and to cherish them. A volume could not trace all their connections with private and public felicity. Let it simply be asked, where is the security for property, for reputation, for life, if the sense of religious obligation desert the oaths which are the instruments of investigation in courts of justice? And let us with caution indulge the supposition that morality can be maintained without religion. Whatever may be conceded to the influence of refined education on minds of peculiar structure, reason and experience both forbid us to expect, that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle.

It is substantially true, that virtue or morality is a necessary spring of popular government. The rule, indeed, extends with more or less force to every species of free government. Who that is a sincere friend to it can look with indifference upon attempts to shake the foundation of the fabric?

Promote, then, as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge. In proportion as the structure of a government gives force to public opinion, it should be enlightened.

As a very important source of strength and security, cherish public credit. One method of preserving it is to use it as sparingly as possible, avoiding occasions of expense by cultivating peace, but remembering, also, that timely disbursements, to prepare for danger, frequently prevent much greater disbursements to repel it; avoiding likewise the accumulation of debt, not only by shunning occasions of expense, but by vigorous exertions, in time of peace, to discharge the debts which unavoidable wars may have occasioned, not ungenerously throwing upon posterity the burden which we ourselves ought to bear. The execution of these maxims belongs to your representatives, but it is necessary that public opinion should co-operate. To facilitate to them the performance of their duty, it is essential that you should practically bear in mind, that towards the payment of debts there must be revenue; that to have revenue there must be taxes; that no taxes can be devised which are not more or less inconvenient and unpleasant; that the intrinsic embarrassment inseparable from the selection of the proper object (which is always a choice of difficulties,) ought to be a decisive motive for a candid construction of the conduct of the government in making it, and for a spirit of acquiescence in the measures for obtaining revenue, which the public exigencies may at any time dictate.

Observe good faith and justice towards all nations; cultivate peace and harmony with all. Religion and morality enjoin this conduct, and can it be that good policy does not equally enjoin it? It will be worthy of a free, enlightened, and, at no distant period, a great nation, to give to mankind the magnanimous and too novel example of a people always guided by an exalted justice and benevolence. Who can doubt but, in the course of time and things, the fruits of such a plan would richly repay any temporary advantages which might be lost by a steady adherence to it; can it be that Providence has not connected the permanent felicity of a nation with its virtue? The experiment, at least, is recommended by every sentiment which ennobles human nature. Alas! is it rendered impossible by its vices?

In the execution of such a plan, nothing is more essential than that permanent, inveterate antipathies against particular nations and passionate attachment for others, should be excluded; and that, in place of them, just and amicable feelings towards all should be cultivated. The nation which indulges towards another an habitual hatred, or an habitual fondness, is in some degree a slave. It is a slave to its animosity or to its affection, either of which is sufficient to lead it astray from its duty and its interest. Antipathy in one nation against another, disposes each more readily to offer insult and injury, to lay hold of slight causes of umbrage, and to be haughty and intractable when accidental or trifling occasions of dispute occur. Hence, frequent collisions, obstinate, envenomed, and bloody contests. The nation, prompted by ill will and resentment, sometimes impels to war the government, contrary to the best calculations of policy. The government sometimes participates in the national propensity, and adopts through passion what reason would reject; at other times, it makes the animosity of the nation subservient to projects of hostility, instigated by pride, ambition, and other sinister and pernicious motives. The peace often, sometimes perhaps the liberty of nations, has been the victim.

So likewise, a passionate attachment of one nation for another produces a variety of evils. Sympathy for the favorite nation, facilitating the illusion of an imaginary common interest, in cases where no real common interest exists, and infusing into one the enmities of the other, betrays the former into a participation in the quarrels and wars of the latter, without adequate inducements or justifications. It leads also to concessions, to the favorite nation, of privileges denied to others, which is apt doubly to injure the nation making the concessions, by unnecessarily parting with what ought to have been retained, and by exciting jealousy, ill will, and a disposition to retaliate in the parties from whom equal privileges are withheld; and it gives to ambitious, corrupted or deluded citizens who devote themselves to the favorite nation, facility to betray or sacrifice the interests of their own country, without odium, sometimes even with popularity; gilding with the appearances of a virtuous sense of obligation, a commendable deference for public opinion, or a laudable zeal for public good, the base or foolish compliances of ambition, corruption, or infatuation.

As avenues to foreign influence in innumerable ways, such attachments are particularly alarming to the truly enlightened and independent patriot. How many opportunities do they afford to tamper with domestic factions, to practice the arts of seduction, to mislead public opinion, to influence or awe the public councils!—Such an attachment of a small or weak, towards a great and powerful nation, dooms the former to be the satellite of the latter.

Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence, (I conjure you to believe me fellow citizens,) the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake, since history and experience prove, that foreign influence is one of the most baneful foes of republican government. But that jealousy, to be useful, must be impartial, else it becomes the instrument of the very influence to be avoided, instead of a defense against it. Excessive partiality for one foreign nation and excessive dislike for another, cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to veil and even second the arts of influence on the other. Real patriots, who may resist the intrigues of the favorite, are liable to become suspected and odious; while its tools and dupes usurp the applause and confidence of the people, to surrender their interests.

The great rule of conduct for us, in regard to foreign nations, is, in extending our commercial relations, to have with them as little political connection as possible. So far as we have already formed engagements, let them be fulfilled with perfect good faith:—Here let us stop.

Europe has a set of primary interests, which to us have none, or a very remote relation. Hence, she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves, by artificial ties, in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics, or the ordinary combinator and collisions of her friendship or enmities.

Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to pursue a different course. If we remain one people, under an efficient government, the period is not far off when we may defy material injury from external annoyance; when we may take such an attitude as will cause the neutrality we may at any time resolve upon, to be scrupulously respected; when belligerent nations, under the impossibility of making acquisitions upon us, will not lightly hazard the giving us provocation, when we may choose peace or war, as our interest, guided by justice, shall counsel.

Why forego the advantages of so peculiar a situation? Why quit our own to stand upon foreign ground? Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambition, rivalry, interest, humor, or caprice?

It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliance with any portion of the foreign world; so far, I mean, as we are now at liberty to do it; for let me not be understood as capable of patronizing infidelity to existing engagements. I hold the maxim no less applicable to public than private affairs, that honesty is always the best policy. I repeat it, therefore, let those engagements be observed in their genuine sense. But in my opinion, it is unnecessary, and would be unwise to extend them.

Taking care always to keep ourselves by suitable establishments, on a respectable defensive posture, we may safely trust to temporary alliances of extraordinary emergencies.

Harmony, and a liberal intercourse with all nations, are recommended by policy, humanity, and interest. But even our commercial policy should hold an equal and impartial hand; neither seeking nor granting exclusive favors or preferences; consulting the natural course of things; diffusing and diversifying by gentle means the streams of commerce, but forcing nothing; establishing with powers so disposed, in order to give trade a stable course, to define the rights of our merchants, and to enable the government to support them, conventional rules of intercourse, the best that present circumstances and mutual opinion will permit, but temporary, and liable to be from time to time abandoned or varied as experience and circumstances shall dictate; constantly keeping in view, that it is folly in one nation to look for disinterested favors from another; that it must pay with a portion of its independence for whatever it may accept under that character; that by such acceptance, it may place itself in the condition of having given equivalents for nominal favors, and yet of being reproached with ingratitude for not giving more. There can be no greater error than to expect, or calculate upon real favors from nation to nation. It is an illusion which experience must cure, which a just pride ought to discard.

In offering to you, my countrymen, these counsels of an old and affectionate friend, I dare not hope they will make the strong and lasting impression I could wish; that they will control the usual current of the passions, or prevent our nation from running the course which has hitherto marked the destiny of nations, but if I may even flatter myself that they may be productive of some partial benefit, some occasional good; that they may now and then recur to moderate the fury of party spirit, to warn against the mischiefs of foreign intrigue, to guard against the impostures of pretended patriotism; this hope will be a full recompense for the solicitude for your welfare by which they have been dictated.

How far, in the discharge of my official duties, I have been guided by the principles which have been delineated, the public records and other evidences of my conduct must witness to you and to the world. To myself, the assurance of my own conscience is, that I have, at least, believed myself to be guided by them.

In relation to the still subsisting war in Europe, my proclamation of the 22d of April, 1793, is the index to my plan. Sanctioned by your approving voice, and by that of your representatives in both houses of congress, the spirit of that measure has continually governed me, uninfluenced by any attempts to deter or divert me from it.

After deliberate examination, with the aid of the best lights I could obtain, I was well satisfied that our country, under all the circumstances of the case, had a right to take, and was bound, in duty and interest, to take a neutral position. Having taken it, I determined, as far as should depend upon me, to maintain it with moderation, perseverance and firmness.

The considerations which respect the right to hold this conduct, it is not necessary on this occasion to detail. I will only observe that, according to my understanding of the matter, that right, so far from being denied by any of the belligerent powers, has been virtually admitted by all.

The duty of holding a neutral conduct may be inferred, without any thing more, from the obligation which justice and humanity impose on every nation, in cases in which it is free to act, to maintain inviolate the relations of peace and amity toward other nations.

The inducements of interest for observing that conduct will best be referred to your own reflections and experience. With me, a predominant motive has been to endeavor to gain time to our country to settle and mature its yet recent institutions, and to progress, without interruption, to that degree of strength, and consistency which is necessary to give it, humanly speaking, the command of its own fortunes.

Though in reviewing the incidents of my administration, I am unconscious of intentional error, I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. Whatever they may be, I fervently beseech the Almighty to avert or mitigate the evils to which they may tend. I shall also carry with me the hope that my country will never cease to view them with indulgence; and that, after forty-five years of my life dedicated to its service, with upright zeal, the faults of incompetent abilities will be consigned to oblivion, as myself must soon be to the mansions of rest.

Relying on its kindness in this as in other things, and actuated by that fervent love towards it, which is so natural to a man who views in it the native soil of himself and his progenitors for several generations; I anticipate with pleasing expectation that retreat in which I promise myself to realize, without alloy, the sweet enjoyment of partaking, in the midst of my fellow citizens, the benign influence of good laws under a free government—the ever favorite object of my heart, and the happy reward, as I trust, of our mutual cares, labors and dangers.

GEO. WASHINGTON.

UNITED STATES,

17th September, 1796.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. On behalf of this Senate, I thank the Senator from Virginia (Mr. WARNER) for so eloquently repeating the words of President Washington which he wrote for his Farewell Address.

May we in this day give heed to his words.

ROUTINE MORNING BUSINESS

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, there will now be a period for the transaction of routine morning business for not to extend beyond 1 hour, with statements therein limited to 15 minutes.

Under the previous order, the Senator from Wisconsin is recognized.

WASHINGTON'S FAREWELL ADDRESS

Mr. PROXMIER. Mr. President, I, too, commend the distinguished Senator from Virginia (Mr. WARNER) for his superlative reading of Washington's Farewell Address.

It is most appropriate that this fine, new Senator should be chosen as the person to read the address this morning. He has had a great record of service to the country as Secretary of the Navy. He is a man who, as I understand it, was head of the Bicentennial celebration.

He understands so deeply the history of our country and the majesty of our country, and to have him read the Farewell Address to us this morning is a real privilege.

Unfortunately, the weather kept the crowd down. I do wish there had been more Senators present to hear our friend from Virginia.

I join the Presiding Officer in commending him on an excellent reading. It is most appropriate that we should have this before us.

Mr. President, I would like to say a few things very briefly about the Farewell Address, because, unfortunately, we hear the reading and then we let it go. I do not think we should do that.

This is a great address by George Washington. Incidentally, it was never actually delivered. He never gave it himself. He wrote it, but it was not delivered.

There are some remarkable things about this. Obviously, it was delivered at a time, in 1796, when this was an entirely different kind of a country with a different situation; a small, agricultural country of 3.5 million people.

He talked about being involved in the controversies in Europe. We were a country far smaller than the European countries, weaker than the European countries militarily, and virtually in every other respect. His advice, given at that time, should be viewed under those circumstances.

He said:

Europe has a set of primary interests, which to us have none, or a very remote relation. Hence, she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves, by artificial ties, in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics, or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities.

That was right in 1796. Obviously, it is not the case in 1979 when, of course, our NATO alliance with Europe is the very cornerstone of achieving peace in the world.

Mr. President, in spite of the fact that much of this address does relate to a period that is far in the past, and to a little country, I think there is a very great deal we can learn from it.

It is interesting in this year that follows proposition 13 and the concern so many have with balancing the budget, that Washington does say:

... avoiding likewise the accumulation of debt, not only by shunning occasions of expense, but by vigorous exertions, in time of peace, to discharge the debts which unavoidable wars may have occasioned, not ungenerously throwing upon posterity the burden which we ourselves ought to bear. The execution of these maxims belongs to your ...

Of course, that is good advice. It is advice we can and should take. No matter how we try to rationalize the colossal deficits we have suffered in the last 8 or 10 years particularly, there is no way that that can be squared with the fundamental principles on which this country was founded and the good, solid advice that George Washington gave us.

CAUSES OF INFLATION

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President, apropos of that, I would like to call to the attention of the Senate one of the most remarkable responses that I have heard in a long time in a Senate hearing.

The other day, the Senate Banking Committee had hearings on the Council on Wage and Price Stability. Our witnesses were Dr. Kahn and Dr. Bosworth. Dr. Bosworth, as you know, is the man who runs the Council on Wage and Price Stability. Both of these men are eminent economists.

Dr. Bosworth was asked by a member of the committee what was the anatomy, the causes, of inflation. I think at a time when we are perplexed by this, it is good to get the advice or the observations of one of the ablest men in this country in the area of inflation, and a man who has the principal responsibility for handling the details of it.

Dr. Bosworth did something most unusual. He not only discussed the causes of inflation, but he analyzed the causes in numerical terms. I would like to read part of what he said:

Number one is that there is an ongoing momentum of inflation that has come out of past inflation, the expectations of people that it will continue.

The Chairman made reference earlier to people who are seeking wage increases in order to catch up with past price increases and they fully expect those increases to recur in the future.

Businessmen who pass on those increases and adjust it a little bit because they expect them to continue in the future. That after 10 years of rapid inflation in the United States that whole process, whether you describe it simply as expectations or catch-up or wage rate relationships has become deeply embedded in the economy.

That is the first problem, to break that. I would place the magnitude of that sort of process today as basically giving us a rate of inflation of between 7 and 7.5 percent a year, just ongoing continual pressure.

Whereas, a year ago I would have put that number down around 6 percent. I think, in other words, that there has been an acceleration of the underlying rate of inflation or momentum of inflation in this country of about a percentage point or a little bit more in the last 12 months.

The reasons that inflation momentum tends to pick up, the factors responsible for them, is first fiscal and monetary policy, given some basic inflation, market shortages and some prices move up more rapidly.

When that happens, it gets built into the wages, it spreads throughout the economy and gets built in again.

The other part of it, though, is the economy's vulnerability to a large number of shocks from a variety of different sources that tend to have inflationary impacts.

The first and most dramatic in the February price index is the instability of farm prices.

Secondly, we are much more vulnerable to the international community than we are a decade ago. There is more volatility, oil is only one example of raw materials, there are others on which we are dependent to the rest of the world.

Next to that, government; government has had impact on initiating this action and speeding it up.

It's an attempt to keep up with the cost of living. Expectation of continued price inflation. Government does do it in two areas. One is direct price actions that it takes.

Earlier, there was mention of sugar. We have had farm bill legislation passed.

We have a minimum wage increase. We have had two major increases in social security taxes. In the current year, I put the magnitude of those sort of direct price increasing actions by government at between a half of a percent and three-quarters of a percent, if it goes ahead with the type of plans that seem to be anticipated for tax increases and other measures.

The second one is the regulatory. The regulatory does not show up as a wage increase. It does not show up as a profit margin increase. It shows up as a decline in productivity.

When we try to reduce air pollution and other things, we tell firms to divert more labor and other resources into reducing pollution and less to producing goods and services.

The impact of that is to reduce productivity. This country up until the middle part of the 1960s had a steady trend rate increase in productivity of about 3 percent a year. It began to drop off in the last sixties and was a cause of some concern.

We used to talk about productivity growth declining by a third of what it was, down to 2 percent a year. In the last two years, productivity has averaged less than 1 percent a year.

But I would argue that those regulations from empirical studies that exist so far say that federal regulation has probably contributed between one-half and three-quarters of a percentage point in the slow-down of productivity growth. So that is a major factor.

Second, it's difficult to get people to cooperate to restrain their own increases when in real terms they are not gaining anything.

The only way society as a whole can gain is through productivity growth. If there is no productivity growth, my wage increase comes out of your hide and your wage increase comes out of my hide.

A fundamental difficulty is that we can't promise people that by cooperating and holding down on their money price increases, that there will be an improvement in the real income because this economy is beginning to look like Great Britain in the 1960s.

In other words, momentum of inflation, shocks of inflation coming from the international market, food, and government, and third, this growing serious problem of productivity growth.

If all three of those areas could be addressed effectively, I think over the next couple of years we could very effectively try to reduce inflation.

Mr. President, I think this is such an unusual summary, I would like to conclude by pointing out how he indicates we can do this:

We know of several ways to bring that to an end.

Fiscal and monetary restraints rigorously applied to slow the rate of growth of the economy and throw some people out of work, we know would work.

People say if you would only quit printing money, inflation would come to an end, if you would only—they are right.

Slow down production, slow down—it would throw 3 million people out of work.

The problem of those policies is that they are so costly. What's happened in the past, we all get upset about inflation. We call on the Congress to balance the budget, hold down spending—it doesn't and we go into a recession.

Then everybody gets panicky about unemployment.

Before the recession has an impact on the inflation rate we switch around. I think those costs are very real costs. It is unreasonable to deal with inflation by throwing people out of work.

Instead what we try to do, hopefully were this program to succeed is slow the rate of growth of the economy, yes, relieve excess demand pressure, yes. But don't undo the progress we have made over the past three years.

Try to hold the unemployment rate roughly where it is right now. Unfortunately, we cannot reduce the overall unemployment rate more than it is right now in the next couple years without worsening inflation.

But hold it there. Don't overdo it. We know that process is slow and gradual. There is a way to speed it up. That is to ask people to voluntarily, within that kind of atmosphere where there are no shortages driving up prices and wages, to voluntarily agree to hold down and accelerate the rate of slow-down in their own wage and price increase, so we can translate fiscal and monetary restraints into a slowing rate of inflation at less cost in unemployment than would otherwise be the case.

Mr. President, he concluded by saying this:

The attempt here, we cannot promise success overnight, but we have to stick with it with a smooth and gradual policy to gradually slow down the rate of growth in the economy and recognize that no government can promise success in inflation on one month's prices.

More importantly, no government can solve this problem.

It just is not a problem that can be solved by government alone.

It's going to require a lot more contributions than just those of government.

That was an impromptu response by Dr. Bosworth, and it is one that I thought should be called to the attention of all Senators because, as I say, he is the man who is in charge of running the Council on Wage and Price Stability. It does give a reason and a coherent basis for the attempt to hold down prices.

COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND LIFE SCIENCES, UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President, I am happy, as the senior Senator from Wisconsin, to call to the attention of the Senate that some 4,000 faculty members around the Nation have ranked the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at the University of Wisconsin in Madison as second in the Nation among agricultural colleges.

It showed Wisconsin's college was second only to Cornell University at Ithaca, N.Y. Wisconsin ranked above Iowa State, third; Michigan State, fourth; Purdue, fifth; and the campuses of the University of California at Davis and Berkeley, sixth and seventh.

The feeling at the University of Wisconsin is that we are moving ahead and that we are likely to be first in the near future, because there are as many improvements that we expect to be able to put into effect in the next few years.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD an article from the Wisconsin State Journal of January 28, 1979.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN'S HIGH AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL RANKING IS AN HONOR

The rank of the College of Agricultural and Life Sciences at the University of Wisconsin-Madison as second in the nation among agriculture colleges is a great achievement for the men and women who work under Dean Glenn S. Pound.

The rating was made by 4,000 faculty members around the nation. It showed Wisconsin's college was second only to Cornell University at Ithaca, N.Y. Wisconsin ranked above Iowa State, third; Michigan State, fourth; Purdue, fifth; and the campuses of the University of California at Davis and Berkeley, sixth and seventh.

And this rating can only get better since the Board of Regents has moved up the priority of new College of Agricultural and Life Sciences buildings, like the new Plant Industry and Engineering building, and has renewed its endorsement of a School of Veterinary Medicine on the Madison campuses.

These new facilities, along with the North Central Regional Dairy-Forage Laboratory and plans for expansion of horticulture and improvement of soil science buildings, will aid in recruiting top faculty members who will add to the strength Wisconsin has traditionally had in agriculture.

It is only right that the College of Agricultural and Life Sciences be nationally recognized. It is an honor, too, for the people of Wisconsin whose resources have created and supported the college programs.

JAPANESE WINDOW DRESSING

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President, the trade imbalance between Japan and the United States reflects basic structural differences in the two economies and requires significant policy adjustments in both countries. Japan must open her markets to U.S. goods and the United States must make a greater effort to promote exports to Japan. Such measures combined with the higher exchange rates the yen has attained recently will gradually reduce the imbalance.

Unfortunately Japan is showing a preference for "window dressing" the balance-of-payments statistics at a time when basic corrective measures are needed. The Export-Import Bank of Japan has hatched a scheme to provide funds for foreign, and perhaps even United States, commercial airlines, and have the full value of the aircraft recorded as a U.S. export to Japan. Of course, the airplanes would never even fly over Japan; they would go directly to the third-country or U.S. airline.

But the Japanese get more than an artificial adjustment in their balance of payments; they earn interest and charges on the leases and build up trade relations with airlines which will eventually be used to promote Japanese, not American, exports. In addition, when the leases are paid, and ownership transferred to third country airlines, Japan will record the transactions as exports—the window dressing will be reversed to benefit the Japanese trade balance in 1989 and beyond.

Such gimmicks will not remedy the fundamental problems in United States-Japanese trade and should be firmly rejected in both countries. Leasing transactions which do not involve true U.S. exports to Japan must be excluded from calculations of the United States-Japan trade balance. I have asked the staff of the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs to investigate the accounting treatment of international leasing in the balance of payments and to draft legislation, if necessary, to insure that window dressing transactions do not obscure the unpleasant truth about trade imbalances.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that an item on this subject by A. E. Cullison which appeared in the Journal of Commerce of February 5, 1979, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

JAPAN JET-LEASING PLAN PROBED TO AVOID POSSIBLE CRITICISM (By A. E. Cullison)

TOKYO.—Purchase and leasing of foreign commercial jetliners under Japan's "emergency import" program has come under scrutiny by the Finance Ministry out of fears that possible questionable arrangements may result in criticism by Japanese taxpayers that they are benefiting a specific industry at public expense.

The system calls for a group of private leasing firms in Japan to use low-interest, foreign-currency loans from the governmental Export-Import Bank of Japan in the purchase of American and European aircraft for leasing to commercial airlines abroad.

It is based upon the concept that by so doing the purchase price of the commercial jets can be added to Japan's imports and thus reduce the country's large trade surpluses with the nations manufacturing the planes.

But Finance Ministry officials have taken note of growing skepticism in Japan concerning the aircraft business, mainly due to the recent Lockheed bribery scandal and claims that the Grumman Corp. may have been guilty of illegal payoffs as well.

The ministry also is aware that circles in the United States government are starting to complain that the program really does not lead to increasing Japan's imports to any meaningful degree and might actually be ruining normal markets for the same aircraft overseas and inside the U.S.

Critics in Washington for example, contend that calling the leased aircraft "imports" ignores the fact that the Japanese companies involved are earning interest and rental charges similar to an outright re-exporting arrangement.

Although the Japanese government adds the "imports" to its statistics as a result of the leasing arrangements, the argument goes, the American manufacturers could sell the aircraft to the same buyers without Japan's "window dressing."

Apparently, Finance Ministry authorities already have asked those of the country's private banking institutions which have become involved in such leasing programs to use their utmost discretion.

It is expected that the ministry will now make much more thorough inspections of each leasing project which makes use of Exim Bank funding. Ministry officials, it is understood, also intend to reject applications from leasing firms for the purchase of American commercial jetliners for the purpose of leasing them to airlines in the U.S.

There had been reports in Tokyo that some of the leasing companies had approached United, Pan Am and TWA Airlines, for instance, with a plan to purchase $300 million worth of U.S. aircraft for leasing to them.

Under the administration of former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda it has been planned to use Exim Bank easy-term loans for the purchase of $745 million worth of leasing aircraft.

Now, however, with the Finance Ministry considering a considerable increase in the 6 percent interest rate per annum, the entire program could be greatly reduced in scope. Opposing such a decision is the Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI).

Finance Ministry officials have explained that one of the most questionable cases in recent days involves a leasing contract concluded with British Airways. Apparently, the British firm in 1976 had concluded a contract with Boeing company for purchase of a 747 jetliner.

This contract was canceled in favor of leasing from a consortium of Japanese firms, although British Airways already had made a down payment to Boeing.

If the Finance Ministry finally decides to go ahead with the aircraft purchase and leasing program, even with tightened supervision, it is expected that much of the $2 billion in emergency imports scheduled for fiscal 1979, a term beginning in April, will involve such leasing projects.

IMPACT OF "HOLOCAUST" WORLDWIDE

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President, I have spoken on this floor previously about the reactions of the West German audience to that country's recent showing of the American filmed docudrama "Holocaust." The West German public had its eyes reopened to the cool and calculated atrocities of the Nazi decade, and public response to this controversial showing was overwhelmingly positive.

Mr. President, this response has not been limited to West Germany. The New York Times on January 28, 1979, reported that West German television officials have been receiving calls from Communist East Germany, the vast majority of which have also been in favor of the program.

The response to this program abroad only confirms the response that many of us had when this program was broadcast in this country. It renews in us the sense of urgency to take concrete action to insure that such a tragedy never repeats itself.

What, then can we do? There are three main areas where our efforts should be concentrated.

First, documentaries and docudramas like "Holocaust" must continue to be produced and aired. These programs can only serve as necessary reminders of the brute factuality of what happens when a group of people such as the Jews are systematically exterminated.

Second, our educational institutions must continue to keep ourselves and our children informed about the historical reality of occurrences like the holocaust.

Third, we must make concerted effort on the international level to prevent any future possibility of such a tragedy from reoccurring.

Mr. President, this body has an opportunity to act on this third option. The Genocide Convention, more than any other proposal to come before the Senate, addresses the problem of genocide which the holocaust program so vividly reminds us of.

Mr. President, we must prevent future holocausts. We must ratify the Genocide Convention.

Mr. President, what we can do, the concrete action that only the U.S. Senate can take, is to ratify the Genocide Convention that has been waiting for our ratification for 30 long years. We have been called upon by every President, Democrat and Republican, every Secretary of State, every Attorney General, by the bar association, by virtually every religious denomination, to ratify the Genocide Convention, but this body has somehow not been able to find it in its heart to take this humane, humanitarian action.

I do hope the Senate will find a way to act, and act within the next few months. After 30 long years, it is about time.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that an article appearing in the New York Times of January 29, 1979, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

EFFECTS OF "HOLOCAUST" ON WEST GERMAN TV CROSS BORDER INTO EAST
(By Ellen Lentz)

WEST BERLIN, January 27.—An intense public debate in West Germany about Nazi policies of genocide against the Jews of Europe, a debate aroused by showing this week of the American television series "Holocaust," is reaching across the border into East Germany. Many people there who live beyond normal West German broadcasting range are demanding that they be given an opportunity to see the series.

Peter Kroeger, a spokesman for West Berlin television, said he was receiving many telephone calls from East Berlin and other parts of East Germany, with callers commenting on the series or complaining of being unable to pick up the programs.

Audience reaction in West Germany has been "overwhelming," Mr. Kroeger said, taking the form of 20,000 telephone calls, telegrams, messages and letters received so far in West Berlin and Cologne, the main broadcasting station, since the four-part program opened Monday.

Further segments were presented Tuesday and Thursday night, with the final installment last night.

"THIS IS AN ABSOLUTE RECORD"

"We have never had this kind of reaction before," the television official said. "This is an absolute record."

An East Berlin woman told a visitor who crossed from the West that she had insisted upon seeing the series—in which the fate of a fictional Jewish family from Berlin is used to portray ordeals under the Nazis—after she had heard about it on a West German news broadcast.

"My husband was opposed at first and said we knew enough about the past already," said the woman, a 34-year old graphic artist.

"Now that I have seen two of the segments I understand that our state-run network will not show the program because they feel it is too pro-Zionist. But what I do not understand is why the West Germans are not showing it on their main national channel."

The regional television channels on which West Germany is broadcasting the series can be received in East Berlin and in areas along the boundary, but most of East Germany's viewers are beyond their range.

The main West German channel, the First Program, can be picked up by about 85 percent of the sets in East Germany.

The Communist leadership in East Germany and the party-led press have not indicated any public reaction. While there is no official ban in East Germany on watching West German television, the Communist authorities do not encourage it.

Mr. Kroeger said that among those East German callers who had seen the program, positive reaction outweighed negative comments at a rate of 6 to 2.

"We have been shown a large number of documentaries here," an East German said, "but so far we were always led to believe Nazi atrocities were a matter only for the capitalists and did not concern us, as a socialist country."

He added that a public debate about anti-Semitism "is overdue in our part of the country."

WASHINGTON'S FAREWELL ADDRESS

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I commend Senator WARNER on the reading of Washington's Farewell Address this morning. It is fitting that this address was read this morning by a Senator who braved the elements to be here to carry out his duty in honor of our first President, who braved many a storm in order to make this country possible.

I think there is some important symbolism in that.

GENOCIDE CONVENTION

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, while I am on my feet, I wish to commend Senator PROXMIRE for his daily reminder to this Senate, which also has taken a great amount of courage and bravery, of the fact that we have not yet ratified the Genocide Convention.

I, as one Senator, wish to take this opportunity when we are talking about courage and bravery to thank the senior Senator from Wisconsin for pricking the conscience daily on something which should not rest until we finally do it.

I thank the Chair.

Mr. PROXMIRE. Will the Senator yield for just a moment?
Mr. BAUCUS. Yes.

SENATOR BAUCUS AS ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President, I commend the distinguished Senator from Montana as acting majority leader. I believe he is one of the newest and youngest acting majority leaders we have ever had.

It is so appropriate to have a Senator from Montana. As the Senator knows, one of the most beloved men who ever served in this Senate was a predecessor, Mike Mansfield. He served as majority leader longer than any majority leader in the history of the Senate, and with great distinction.

So it is good to have Senator BAUCUS, who is a fine man, who not only represents Montana, but represented the same congressional district in the House of Representatives, as I understand it, that Mike Mansfield represented.

It seems like old home week. It seems we are back in the situation we were in for so many years when Senator Mansfield did a great job as majority leader here.

Mr. BAUCUS. I deeply thank the senior Senator from Wisconsin.

Senator Mansfield has long been a model to this Senator, to the citizens of Montana, as well as Members of the U.S. Senate and the Nation as a whole. He has been an inspiration to all of us. I thank the Senator.

Mr. WARNER. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. BAUCUS. I yield to the Senator from Virginia.

WASHINGTON'S FAREWELL ADDRESS

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I would like to express my appreciation to the Senator from Wisconsin for his very thoughtful remarks on my behalf. I wish to note that nothing deterred him either in his mental stamina or his physical stamina, to get here on this day.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT RECEIVED DURING THE RECESS

Pursuant to the order of the Senate of February 9, 1979, sundry messages, transmitting nominations, were received by the Secretary of the Senate during the recess of the Senate, which were referred to the appropriate committees.

(The nominations received during the recess are printed at the end of today's proceedings of the Senate.)

FOREIGN CURRENCY REPORTS

In accordance with the appropriate provisions of law, the Secretary of the Senate herewith submits the following report(s) of standing committees of the Senate, certain joint committees of the Congress, delegations and groups, and select and special committees of the Senate, relating to expenses incurred in the performance of authorized foreign travel:

REPORT UNDER PELLY AMENDMENT TO FISHERMEN'S PROTECTIVE ACT OF 1967—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT—PM 25

Under authority of the order of the Senate of Friday, February 9, 1979, the Secretary of the Senate on February 13, 1979, received the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report, which was referred to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation:

To the Congress of the United States:

On December 14, 1978, Secretary of Commerce Kreps certified to me, pursuant to the Pelly Amendment to the Fishermen's Protective Act of 1967, that nationals of Peru, Chile and the Republic of Korea were conducting whaling operations in a manner that diminishes the effectiveness of the International Whaling Commission conservation programs.

Under the Pelly Amendment, such a certification must be followed by a report to the Congress. I am pleased to transmit the attached report which indicates that all three of these nations are becoming members of the International Whaling Commission and will therefore voluntarily become subject to its conservation programs. Thus, I am not at this time imposing sanctions against these nations.

PROPOSED CREATION OF CABINET-LEVEL DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT—PM 26

Under authority of the order of the Senate of Friday, February 9, 1979, the Secretary of the Senate on February 13, 1979, received the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report, which was referred to the Committee on Governmental Affairs:

To the Congress of the United States:

I am sending to the Congress today my proposal to establish a Department of Education.

There is a compelling need for the increased national attention to a separate Cabinet department will bring to education issues. Our Nation's pluralistic education system, considered the most competent and open in the world, faces many problems and challenges: a decline in public confidence in the quality of education; unacceptably high rates of high school dropouts and of young people who lack basic educational tools and specific skills for productive employment; and increasing demands for retraining and learning opportunities.

The primary responsibility for education in our Nation lies with State and local government. The Federal government has a limited, but critical responsibility to help public and private institutions meet these challenges: to ensure equal educational opportunities; to increase access to postsecondary education by low and middle income students; to generate research and provide information to help our educational systems meet special needs; prepare students for employment; and encourage improvements in the quality of our education. The achievement of each of these goals will be enhanced by a new Department of Education.

Through our legislative and budget initiatives of the past two years, this Administration has given high priority to meeting these educational commitments. My budget for FY 1980 provides for $13.3 billion in education outlays, about a 45 percent increase above the level when I came into office. Last year, we established a legislative framework, the Middle Income Student Assistance program, to help solve one of our major education problems—the growing cost of a college education. The establishment of a Cabinet Department of Education will reflect the continued high priority my Administration places on education.

A Department of Education will bring our Nation's educational challenges and the Federal government's role in meeting them to the forefront of domestic policy discussion. Such discussion is vital to an activity that directly affects 60 million students, teachers and educational employees and constitutes a $120 billion public and private enterprise.

Establishing a separate Department will create, for the first time, a Cabinet-level advocate for education with direct access to the President, the Congress, and the public.

Second, it will give Federal education programs the full-time, high-level leadership and management that they cannot receive in a structure so large and complex as the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. This will allow the Federal government to fulfill its responsibilities in education more effectively. It will eliminate duplication in the administrative and staff support activities within the Office of the HEW Secretary and the Education Division. It will allow improved financial management and more efficient administration of education programs. Separation of the education functions from HEW will also promote improved management of its closely-related health and welfare responsibilities.

Third, it will provide greater accountability. Submerged beneath HEW's dominant functions of health and welfare, Federal education programs lack full-time accountability at the Cabinet level. With a separate Department of Education, one Cabinet member will report directly to the President and be accountable to the Congress and the American people for the conduct of Federal education policies.

Fourth, it will provide simpler, more reliable, and more responsive support to states, localities, public and private institutions, giving them a direct line of Cabinet-level contact with the Federal government.

Fifth, the new Department will allow better coordination of education programs with related Federal activities, such as employment programs and research. It will also allow high-level consideration of the impact of other Federal policies, such as tax and energy, on education institutions and students.

Under the proposal I am submitting today, the Department of Education will include more than 150 programs and 16,200 employees. With a budget of more than $13 billion, this Department will be larger than five other Departments including Energy, Commerce, Justice, Interior and State.

In addition to the 140 programs in the Education Division of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, the new Department of Education will handle educational activities now carried out by several other departments. These include: the U.S. Department of Agriculture School, certain science education programs of the National Science Foundation, the overseas dependents' schools of the Department of Defense, the college housing loan program of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Law Enforcement Education and the Law Enforcement Internship Program of the Department of Justice, and the Migrant Education programs of the Department of Labor.

The proposed legislation establishes within the Department of Education separate Offices for Civil Rights, Elementary and Secondary Education, Postsecondary Education and Educational Research and Improvement, each headed by an Assistant Secretary. It establishes an office to administer functions related to the education of overseas dependents of Department of Defense personnel, an Inspector General, and a 20-member Intergovernmental Advisory Council on Education, appointed by the President, to promote better relations with the various levels of government and private institutions.

I urge the Senate and the House of Representatives to act promptly on this important proposal.

JIMMY CARTER.

SIXTH SPECIAL MESSAGE FOR FISCAL YEAR 1979 UNDER IMPOUNDMENT CONTROL ACT OF 1974—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT—PM 27

Under authority of the order of the Senate of Friday, February 9, 1979, the Secretary of the Senate on February 14, 1979, received the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report, which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on the Budget, the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, the Committee on Finance, and the Committee on Foreign Relations, jointly, pursuant to the order of January 30, 1975:

To the Congress of the United States:

In accordance with the Impoundment Control Act of 1974, I herewith report revisions to three previously transmitted deferrals increasing the amount deferred by $33.8 million. These revisions to existing deferrals involve programs in the Departments of Transportation and the Treasury and the International Communication Agency.

The details of the deferrals are contained in the attached reports.

JIMMY CARTER.

THE WHITE HOUSE, February 14, 1979.

QUORUM CALL

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The acting President pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The acting legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ARTHUR M. KUHL

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, on this fateful day, before we move to recess, I would like to personally note that one of the Senate's most faithful servants, Mr. Arthur M. Kuhl, the Assistant Secretary of the Senate, a citizen of the State of Montana, died on his quest to come to work this morning. Two hours ago, as Mr. Kuhl left his residence to come to work yet another day in the U.S. Senate, he passed away on his way to work.

I have known Art Kuhl for some time, not only as a citizen from the State of Montana, but also as a friend and an employee of the U.S. Senate.

I personally extend my deepest sympathies to his family and to his friends in this hour of bereavement, not only to his relatives and friends, but to all those who knew of his service to this body.

RECESS UNTIL WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY, 21, 1979

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, if there be no further business to come before the Senate, I move, in accordance with the previous order, that the Senate stand in recess until the hour of 12 noon on Wednesday.

The motion was agreed to; and at 1:24 p.m., the Senate recessed until Wednesday, February 21, 1979, at 12 o'clock meridian.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

LEGALLY BLIND STUDENT AIDS
VISION TESTS OF RETARDED

HON. GERALDINE A. FERRARO

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, February 19, 1979

● Ms. FERRARO. Mr. Speaker, I rise in praise of the accomplishments of an outstanding young woman who is a resident of New York's Ninth Congressional District. Laurie Koehler, a senior at Grover Cleveland High School in Ridgewood, N.Y., was recently awarded honors in the Westinghouse science talent search. Ms. Koehler, although legally blind, did research in the area of vision perception among the retarded. In this day of increased apathy among our young people, it is heartwarming to find a young woman who is involved and is trying to assist those less fortunate than she. Furthermore, I believe it is most admirable that Ms. Koehler has used the insight she has gained through her own disability to its best advantage to shed new light on the difficulties of those more disadvantaged than she.

I am inserting in the RECORD an article which appeared in the January 25, 1979, issue of the New York Times which outlines Ms. Koehler's achievement. I commend my colleagues to take a few moments to read about Ms. Koehler's outstanding accomplishments.

The article follows:

LEGALLY BLIND STUDENT AIDS VISION TESTS
OF RETARDED

(By Joseph B. Treaster)

A legally blind Queens high school student has won honors in the annual Westinghouse Science Talent Search for a research project on vision tests administered to the mentally retarded.

Laurie Koehler, a senior at Grover Cleveland High School, in Ridgewood, was one of 300 students recognized in the nation's largest high school science scholarship program.

The honored students will be recommended to universities and colleges by Westinghouse, and next week 40 of them will be selected as finalists to compete in Washington for $89,500 in scholarships.

As has often been the case in the past, New York State led the country in the number of students honored. There were 80 from New York, with the majority of them from New York City. Florida was second for the third consecutive year, with 20 students.

Miss Koehler, who is 17 years old, has been legally blind since birth. The term "legally blind" is applied to those who can see only the largest letter on a standard eye chart at a distance of 20 feet. Miss Koehler, like many who are legally blind, can read ordinary printing with the aid of contact lenses. She travels on her own and enjoys photography. Both her parents, Charles and Dorothy Koehler of 1891 Stockholm Street in Ridgewood, are legally blind. She has a 19-year-old sister with normal vision.

Miss Koehler said she began her project last spring with the recognition that many vision tests do not make accurate assessments of the vision of the handicapped. Among the problems, she said, is that some of the handicapped do not know the alphabet, which is used in the most popular eye test. Some also have short attention spans, she said.

Working with about 30 normal youngsters and 30 who are retarded, she began tests with flashcards with individual symbols: a house, an apple and an umbrella. And she found she was getting markedly greater precision in her tests than with a wall chart using similar symbols.

The flashcards were devised by the Light-house for the Blind, she said. But the cards had not been significantly tested with the retarded in the past. ●

SENATE COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate on February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. This title requires all such committees to notify the Office of the Senate Daily Digest—designated by the Rules Committee—of the time, place, and purpose of all meetings when scheduled, and any cancellations or changes in meetings as they occur.

As an interim procedure until the computerization of this information becomes operational the Office of the Senate Daily Digest will prepare this information for printing in the Extensions of Remarks section of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on Monday and Wednesday of each week.

Any changes in committee scheduling will be indicated by placement of an asterisk to the left of the name of the unit conducting such meetings.

Meetings scheduled for Tuesday, February 20, 1979, may be found in the Daily Digest of today's RECORD.

SENATE—Wednesday, February 21, 1979

(Legislative day of Monday, January 15, 1979)

The Senate met at 12 o'clock meridian, on the expiration of the recess, and was called to order by the Honorable PAUL E. TSONGAS, a Senator from the State of Massachusetts.

PRAYER

The Honorable JOHN C. DANFORTH, a Senator from the State of Missouri, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray:

Hour after hour we sat in crowded airports, waiting for planes to leave for Washington. On arrival, we dug the drifted snow away, straining shoulders and backs as we struggled to free our captive cars. Spinning, rocking forward and back, we finally gained momentum, and set ourselves on course for our destination. Warned by radio traffic advisories, alert for patches of ice, we proceeded carefully to the Capitol. At long last, we are here. We have made it. Grant us gracious God, the same patience, the same effort, the same endurance in Your service, that each day may be dedicated to the doing of Your will. Grant that we may proceed, step by step, hour by hour, meeting the challenges You have given us, so that, at the end, the purpose You have set out for us may be accomplished to Your glory. Amen.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. MAGNUSON).

The legislative clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,
Washington, D.C., February 21, 1979.
To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, section 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable PAUL E. TSONGAS, a Senator from the State of Massachusetts, to perform the duties of the Chair.

WARREN G. MAGNUSON,
President pro tempore.

Mr. TSONGAS thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF LEADERSHIP

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from West Virginia.
